Quilt square trail craze
documented in new book

BOOK SIGNING AT RIPLEY
LIBRARY SATURDAY

KAREN STEIN
karen.stein@lee.net

RIPLEY, Ohio | Eleven years after it all began, a book has been written about how the quilt square trail phenomenon that has taken root in people’s imagination across the nation.

Donna Sue Groves, who began it all creating the first quilt trail in Adams County, will be present at a book signing at the Union Township Public Library, in Ripley, on Saturday afternoon.

Barn Quilts and The American Quilt Trail Movement is a collaboration between author Suzi Parron and Groves.

“I became involved with the book after discovering a barn quilt in rural Kentucky. I was intrigued by the little bit of information that folks in the area provided, and I wanted to know more ... through a couple of inquiries, I was led to Donna Sue Groves. Her story captivated me, and I was thrilled when she agreed to collaborate on the book,” Parron said.

Groves said she had been thinking about writing a book for years, but after she had become seriously ill with cancer, the idea seemed to be further out of her reach. So Groves said she and Parron

New job leads

AUGUSTA CITY COUNCIL MEMBER SWITCHES HATS

AUGUSTA | Augusta officials will be looking for a new city council member this month.

Taking on a part-time job with the city of Augusta maintenance department, Joe Goecke has tendered his resignation from his elected position as Augusta City Council member.

Goecke was 16 months into his two-year term when he resigned.

According to Augusta

City Attorney Cynthia Thompson, resignation was required once Goecke accepted the job, to avoid any conflict-of-interest issues.

Goecke has served a total of seven years and four months as a councilman for Augusta, usually garnering close to the top number of votes in each of the 2004, 2006 and 2010 election years; he did not run for council office in 2008, officials said.

EWING | Investigation of a gruesome find continued this week in Fleming County.

After receiving notification a human skull had been found in a drainage ditch near 1636 Delaney Road in Fleming County last week, a search of the area led to the recovery of more bones which appeared to be human skeletal remains, police said on Monday night.

According to Kentucky

State Police, at 5:14 p.m., on Friday, April 27, KSP at Post 8 Morehead received a call from the Fleming County Dispatch about the discovery of a skull, “perceived to be human.”

According to reports, the upper jaw to cranial portion of the skull was found by Greg Myers while he was cleaning out debris from a culvert. The lower jaw and many teeth were not found.

Audit slams Ky. hoops icon
who ran state agency

ROGER ALFORD
Associated Press

FRANKFORT | En route to having his jersey retired by the University of Kentucky, Richie Farmer embodied the traits of a storied basketball program that’s as deeply ingrained in the culture of its state as any in the country. He was a hardworking, sweet-shooting guard from Appalachia beloved as part of a steadfast group of players who turned the team around after some tough years.

But as a politician, the sports icon fostered what state auditors would describe as “a toxic culture of entitlement” while he ran the state Department of Agriculture. A newly released state audit found that Farmer had hired his girlfriend at the agency — though she was rarely seen performing any work — and that he used government workers like servants to chauffeur his dog, mow his

The area where the skull was found is at the base of a steep embankment where heavy rain routinely cuts channels through the brush and exposes layers of rock adjacent to the roadway. The culvert runs under the road, down to a farm field and a creek area.

Investigators from KSP, Fleming County Sheriff's Office and the Fleming County Coroner's Office were at the scene over the weekend, but steep and rough terrain, and weather conditions hampered a search for any other remains.

The skull was taken to the Frankfort Medical Examiner's Office for a "forensic assessment in evidence gathering and identification," police said.

During the preliminary investigation of the area on Friday, no other skeletal remains or clothing were discovered.

Kentucky State Police, as well as various emergency response teams, continued to search nearly 10 acres, using K-9 dogs trained in locating cadavers.

Additional skeletal remains were located and were also sent to the Frankfort Medical Examiner's Office on Monday, police said.

No determination has been made as to how the skull came to be at the location or where the remains came from.

According to Fleming County Sheriff's Office, there are no local missing person reports, at this time, to shed light on the find.

The case remains under investigation by KSP Detective Wesley Prather. If anyone with information concerning this investigation, should contact KSP at 606-784-4127.

Goecke has been a vocal member of council and the council audience, in the years he was not in office.

Recently Goecke voiced a "no" vote when Augusta Mayor John Laycock proposed making a permanent assignment of Kelly Baxter to the position of police chief.

Goecke cited ongoing litigation by the former police chief as a reason not to make the appointment.

Baxter was approved by a majority of council votes.

Goecke has also been outspoken on operation of the city swimming pool as a drain on city resources, abatement of nuisance materials, and setting a time and date of city hours for Trick-or-Treat.

According to city officials, Goecke is in training to read water meters and has been assigned curb painting duties, in addition to care-taking the new public restrooms.

The city is continuing to hire part-time help for the summer, officials said.

QUILT

FROM A1

The first quilt square painting began as just a thought to live up to the barn her mother Nina and she had purchased on part of their farm in Adams County in 1989. For the next few years, family and friends would tease her about when she was going to get around to painting that quilt square for her mother.

At that time, she was working as a consultant and adviser for artists and non-profit organizations in southern Ohio, so she was always thinking of ways to cultivate community development through the arts, Groves said.

And for every empty barn she saw while driving, she was reminded of the promise to her mother.

Then one day in 2001, Pet Whan of the Nature Conservancy-Edge of Appalachia Preserve, offered to help paint a quilt square for her mother, which prompted Groves to realize one quilt square would not be enough, she said.

"My dream and vision grew ... the philosophy of the quilt square driving trail as a means to invite people to visit Adams County, to buy quilts, crafts, local art, to stay in bed and breakfasts, buy gasoline, to spend their money in Adams County ... it was a means to promoting the area," Groves said.

The first trail was 20 registered quilt squares, first in Adams County later it spread to Brown County. Then people became excited about the project and printed or painted the quilt squares on their own, Groves said.

Initially there was no way to keep track of all the squares. Now, when a trail is developed, part of the process is registering each square, so it is known and documented on a trail map for the public to access while driving. This idea was picked up by many regional and local tourist promotion departments, who now utilize it. But the ones that are not documented are fun as well, Groves said. There is a new discovery just over the next hill, she said.

Now designated trails can be found in at least 15 states, and recently in the state of Washington, Groves said.

"I am one of the most blessed woman in the world. I've received so much love and generous outpouring of how the quilt trail concept has changed their lives. There are truly no words to express how much love and friendship has been afforded to me from people connected to the project ... the prayers continually hold and elevate me," Groves said.

This is the biggest community project movement since the Works Progress Administration murals began in 1935. Groves said. WPA was created to provide economic relief to citizens and artists through the Great Depression.

"I can't begin to describe the joy it brings to me to see people, artist, and a community come together. And to see them create this public art piece to display for themselves and the guests that come to their county. The process brings people together in such a wonderful way. It is everything I have dreamed and so much more," Groves said.

Through dozens of interviews with artists, committee members and barn owners, Parron documents a journey that began in 2001 with Groves first quilt trail.

"I firmly believe that barn quilts are transformative — both on a personal and on a community level. The stories that I heard, whether they made it to the book or not, demonstrated the strong ties to quilting that spread across regional and cultural boundaries. Barn quilts carry so much meaning, whether a sense of accomplishment at having created art or a more personal satisfaction at having honored a loved one. I can't think of any other medium that speaks to so many; the fact that over 4,000 barn quilts have been painted and that the movement continues to expand are testament to that," Parron said.

Groves will be at Ripley library to sign books on Saturday at 1 p.m.

MOTORCYCLE MONTH

Practice skills for a safe ride

NEW TESTING SKILLS WENT INTO EFFECT MAY 1

PROVIDED

wendy.mitchell@lee.net

FRANKFORT | May is Motorcyclist Awareness Month and with it comes new requirements through Kentucky State Police Driver Testing Branch.

New rules went into effect Tuesday, so Kentuckians wanting to get a motorcycle operator's license will have to prove proficiency in two more skills.

A new test was developed by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation designed to better determine if a motorcycle operator possess sufficient safety skills for riding motorcycles in traffic.

According to KSP statistics, through April 29, in Kentucky in 2012, 12 crashes involved a motorcycle and eight victims were not wearing helmets.

The new test expands Kentucky's current motorcycle skill test from two to four exercises.

The four exercises include left turn/normal stop; cone weave/right turn from a stop; quick stop and obstacle swerve.

The quick stop and obstacle swerve are the new skills, officials said.

"Our implementation of this new test highlights Motorcycle Safety Awareness Month in May," says KSP Commissioner Rodney Brewer. "It comes at a critical time since statistics show a significant increase in motorcycle-related crashes in Kentucky this year. Hopefully, the new test will help motorcycle operators get off to a safe start with sound, fundamental riding skills that will make Kentucky's roads and highways a safer place for everyone."

Under Kentucky Department of Motor Vehicles guidelines, anyone who drives a motorcycle must have a Class M motorcycle license or motorcycle instruction permit.

Applicants must at least 18 years-old, or hold a valid operator license. Applicants for a motorcycle license permit who are under 18 years old, must have a parent or legal guardian who is willing to assume the responsibility to sign the application for a license. In all cases, the applicant must have the motorcycle permit for at least once calendar month before a motorcycle license can be issued.

The changes apply to both two-wheel and three-wheel motorcycle tests.

The new Kentucky Motorcycle operator licensing test manual is posted on the internet at http://www.kentuckystatepolice.org/pdf/motorcycle\_manual.pdf.

Court officials working to reschedule Crane trial

karen.stein@lee.net

GEORGETOWN, Ohio | Court officials are still in the process of scheduling a continuance of the Robert Crane trial, according to information from the Brown County Court of Common Pleas on Tuesday.

Judge Scott T. Gusweiler met with Crane's attorneys and Brown County prosecutors in his chambers at 8:30 a.m., Monday. However, Brown County Prosecutor Jessica Little said she is still waiting to hear from the laboratory which performed the drug test during an autopsy to investigate the death of Christine Crane.

Crane's trial was temporary halted last week until the laboratory technician who conducted the drug test could be contacted and scheduled to testify.

Little said Monday, "The lab is still running it all down. We are still waiting on them."

Court officials should know more about a new time schedule in the next several days, she said.

Robert Crane is accused of being culpable in the death of his wife, last year. Christine Dryden Crane, 41, died in her home near Aberdeen, Ohio, on March 17, 2011, from heroin toxicity, according to the official autopsy report.

Crane's trial began April 23, with the jury selection; testimony began the following morning, but proceedings stuttered along with breaks and recesses for most of last Tuesday and Wednesday.

A Germantown man had to be extricated from his vehicle Monday night after an accident on Barrett Pike in western Mason County.

According to Mason County Sheriff Patrick Boggs, Nicholas Bess, 28, of Germantown was traveling south on Barrett Pike in a red, 2003 Chevrolet pickup truck around 10:10 p.m., when Bess lost control of the truck on a sharp curve. Boggs said the truck went off the road and struck several trees before coming to a rest.

Boggs said it took first responders 45 minutes to extricate Bess from the vehicle. He was then transferred to Meadowview Regional Medical Center and later transferred to University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington.

A passenger in the truck, 28-year-old James McKee, also of Germantown, was also injured. Officials said he was transported to MRMCM, where he was treated and released.

Boggs said roadway conditions were wet, and alcohol is also suspected as a factor in the accident, which remains under investigation by Mason County Sheriff's Deputy Steve Fitch.

MCSO was assisted at the scene by Fernleaf Volunteer Fire Department and Maysville EMS.

Information on Bess's condition was not available at press time.

SOUTH RIPLEY ROAD CONSTRUCTION ADVISORY

Residents and motorists who frequently travel South Ripley Road near Kentucky 576 — Tuckahoe Road — are being advised of on-going construction in the area.

According to officials with the Mason County Road Department, East Kentucky Power Cooperative has on-going construction at its ash pit located off South Ripley Road.

Due to heavy equipment and trucks moving into and out of the construction site, damage has occurred to the roadway.

To keep the road passable and safe for the traveling public, large gravel has been used to fill holes in the road surface.

Construction is expected to continue until August.

Motorists are advised to exercise vigilance when driving through the area. — LI

FISHERMEN IN EASTERN OHIO FIND BODY ALONG RIVER

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio | Police in eastern Ohio say a body found by fishermen along the Ohio River may be that of a man believed to have fallen from a bridge more than two weeks ago.

The body was found Monday along a riverbank in East Liverpool, near the intersection of the Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia state lines.

The Review newspaper in East Liverpool reports identification on the body indicated it was a 64-year-old man from the area.

Emergency responders in boats had unsuccessfully searched the river on April 13 after people fishing beneath a toll bridge reported hearing a splash and someone calling out for help. Police say it would be hard to determine if that person fell or jumped from the bridge. — AP

Ohio wild animal stampede ignites vast law review

WILD ANIMAL SLAUGHTER IN OHIO COULD BRING CHANGES IN WAY CATS ARE KEPT AND BRED ACROSS COUNTRY

SUE MANNING
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES | Of all the beasts set free by the suicidal owner of an exotic animal farm in Ohio last year, few were as scary or as lethal as the big cats. Tigers, leopards and lions — more than two dozen — were loose before being hunted by sheriff's deputies. While the slaughter was chilling, it was truly panic-inducing that an unstable owner had accumulated such a collection of dangerous animals. Yet, by some estimates, there are thousands of tigers in captivity in American backyards — more than there are in the wild on the planet. No one knows the number for certain because there's only scattered regulation for such pets. In fact, it's easier in some states to buy a tiger or lion from a breeder than it is to adopt a kitten from a shelter. That's likely to change after the Zanesville stampede drew the attention of lawmakers around the country. Legislation has been proposed in Congress that would ban private ownership of exotic cats. Ohio and other states are also looking to outlaw the animals or to keep them more tightly controlled. One leader of the cat fight is actress and animal activist Tippi Hedren, best known for being terrorized by crows in Alfred Hitchcock's "The Birds." Hedren has devoted much of her life to rescuing big cats at her Shambala Preserve north of Los Angeles, home to 53 seized or abandoned exotic cats, and she doesn't think they make good pets. "It is the job of the predator to take out any old, sick or lame animal. What quality there makes for a good pet?" she asked. "If you get near its food, it will kill you." The Zanesville animals may have forced the issue into the open, but it certainly isn't the first tragedy involving private cats. Since 1990, 21 people, including five children, have been killed and 246 mauled, according to Big Cat Rescue in Tampa, Fla. Over that period, 254 cats have escaped and 143 have been killed. There have been other federal laws proposed over the years, but most have failed. Deputies shot nearly 50 wild animals freed on Oct. 18 at Muskingum County Animal Farm near Zanesville. Owner Terry Thompson opened their cages before committing suicide. Some believe it was one last act of retaliation against neighbors and authorities. Reps. Howard "Buck" McKeon, R-Calif., and Loretta Sanchez, D-Calif., introduced the Big Cats and Public Safety Protection Act in February to require owners of tigers, lions, leopards, jaguars, cheetahs, panthers and other cats to register with the Department of Agriculture. Breeding would be banned except at accredited zoos and research and educational institutions. Penalties would include seizures, fines and jail. "When accidents happen and these wild cats are released into our neighborhoods, it causes panic, puts a strain on our local public safety responders and is extremely dangerous," McKeon said. He believes his bill will protect the public and the cats.

the relocation of the organization to a building in downtown Vanceburg. As a joint filing, the city and county are each applying for $250,000, for a total of $500,000. City officials approved their resolution earlier in the month. At the time, Mike Kennedy, director of the Boys and Girls Club of Lewis County said if the grant receives approval and is awarded, the money would be used to purchase a building in Vanceburg that could allow for future expansion of programs, while accommodating the more than 600 children per year served at the existing location at Clarksburg Church. Currently there are three to four sites under consideration for purchase if the grant is awarded, according to Mayor Todd Ruckel and Kennedy. "It's been something we've been pursuing for the last two to three years," Kennedy said. "We're fortunate to have the city's and county's support. A permanent facility would eliminate rent expense by having ownership." In other business, the court discussed moving the day fiscal court meetings are held. Currently, meetings are held on Mondays and discussion centered around changing the day of the week to Tuesday, in order to properly advertise county business in the local newspaper in advance of fiscal court meetings. Discussion was tabled until next month's regular meeting scheduled for Monday, May 14 at 9 a.m.

TRIAL

FROM A3

Then, during the questioning of Dr. Gregory Wanger of St. Elizabeth-Fort Thomas Medical Examiner's Office, defense attorney Nick Ring objected, saying Wanger was not the actual person who performed the test for drugs on Christine Crane during the autopsy. The drug test, which was reported to be an overdose of heroin as the cause of death, was performed by a forensic scientist at a separate company in Indiana, according to court reports. Unlike the usual autopsy investigation in Ohio, the drug test was sent out to another laboratory company which is normal procedure in Kentucky, according to court reports. It fell to the commonwealth's responsibility when Christine Crane was taken to Meadowview Regional Medical Center in Maysville as emergency personal tried to revive her. She was pronounced dead once arriving at the Maysville hospital, according to police reports. The laboratory doctor will need to be subpoenaed, so Robert Crane can confront every witness against him, as is his right according to the Sixth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, Gusweiler told attorneys.

DEATHS LOCALLY

MRS. MOSS

MAYSVILLE | Sandra D. Pollitte Columbia Moss, 75, an art teacher and resident of old Washington, died Monday, April 30, 2012, at Meadowview Regional Medical Center after a short illness.

Sandra was born in Harlan, on July 12, 1936, the daughter and only child of the late James J. and Jennie Jo Hughes Pollitte. She was the granddaughter of the late Edd D. and Mabel Anno Pollitte of Mason County, and late Ben and Gladys Rodman Hughes of Franklin County.

Sandra was proud of her family heritage, which reached back to Kentucky's earliest settlers through several branches. She was an eighth-generation Mason Countian. Mrs. Moss graduated from Henry Clay High School and attended University of Kentucky. She was an art teacher at St. Patrick School. For many years she worked as a draftsman for local civil engineering firms. She also did independent art work, including pen-and-ink drawings of many local schools, and local designs and logos, including that used by the City of Maysville. In 2011, she was presented an Outstanding Community Service Award by the Rotary Club of Maysville.

Sandra often described herself as "a draftsman, not an artist," but she had a gift for seeing and appreciating art in the natural and material world and a talent for helping a generation of students develop their own artistic gifts.

She was a member of the Church of the Nativity and taught Sunday School for over 30 years and was a former member of its vestry.

Survivors include her husband of 21 years, James C. Moss; a son, James (Melissa) Columbia of Mason County; three daughters, Dana Latham (Billy Cropper) of May's Lick, Cathy (Chris) Spencer of Frankfort, and Laura Reed (Rob Knox) of Maysville; a stepson, Michael (Christine) Moss of Janesville, Wis.; grandchildren, Christopher Gallagher, Isaac Reed, Jennie Spencer, Morgan Reed, Kyle Moss and Emily Moss; and her first husband, Robert (Elnora) Columbia.

She was preceded in death by a son-in-law, Randy Reed.

Services for Sandra Columbia Moss will be conducted at 11 a.m., Friday, May 4 at the Church of the Nativity in Maysville with Rev. Michael Henderson officiating.

Burial will follow in the Olivet Church Cemetery. Pallbearers are Ben Hughes, Rodman Hughes, Ronnie Anderson Jr., Ty Newdigate, Corey Newdigate, Craig Chamberlain and Michael Moss.

Visitation is 5-7 p.m., Thursday, May 3, 2012, at the Knox and Brothers Funeral Home and one hour prior to the service at the church on Friday.

In lieu of flowers memorials are suggested to St. Agnes' House, 635 Maxwellton Court, Lexington, Ky. 40508. Guestbook at knoxbrothersfuneralhome.com.

Medical examiner at JFK assassination dies in Iowa

MELANIE S. WELTE
Associated Press

DES MOINES, Iowa | In the turbulent hours following President John F. Kennedy's assassination, many were uncertain about what to do, but medical examiner Earl Rose knew one thing: The shooting happened in Dallas, and it was his job to do an autopsy on anyone slain in the city.

Rose stood in a doorway at the hospital where Kennedy's body was taken on Nov. 22, 1963, in a vain attempt to block Kennedy's aides as they removed his coffin. The Secret Service and first lady Jacqueline Kennedy prevailed, and the president's body was flown to Bethesda Naval Hospital, where an autopsy was done by pathologists James Humes and Thornton Boswell. Their findings have been used to support an array of conspiracy theories about Kennedy's death.

Rose, who died Tuesday at age 85, believed many of those theories wouldn't have gained traction if he had been able to do his job. He told The Associated Press in 2003 that he and his staff should have done the exam.

"We had the routine in place to do it ... it was important for the chain of evidence to remain intact," Rose said. "That didn't happen when the body was taken to Bethesda."

Rose's widow, Marilyn Rose, said her husband wasn't angry about what happened at Parkland Memorial Hospital but did his best to follow the law.

"At that point, there was no federal law on the assassinations of presidents," she said. "If the autopsy was done in Texas, it would have followed the law."

The Warren Commission concluded in 1964 that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in shooting Kennedy. It found Oswald likely fired three shots, one of which struck Texas Gov. John Connally after hitting the president.

Marilyn Rose said her husband agreed with that assessment and began speaking publicly about the assassination after the release of Oliver Stone's 1991 film "JFK," which promoted the view that the president's death was the result of an elaborate conspiracy.

"As far as I know, he definitely felt it was a lone gunman and that the shots came from behind and that there was no second gunman on the grassy knoll. He felt the trajectory of the bullet was a described — that it hit Kennedy and then hit Connally," she said.

Rose conducted Oswald's autopsy, as well as those for Jack Ruby, the Dallas nightclub owner who killed Oswald two days after Kennedy was shot, and J.D. Tippit, a police officer believed to have been killed by Oswald shortly after the assassination.

A native of South Dakota, Rose earned his medical degree from the University of Nebraska. He moved his wife and six children from Dallas in 1968 to take a position as a forensic pathologist and professor at the University of Iowa Medical School.

He died at an Iowa City retirement community. His wife said he was diagnosed with Parkinson's disease and then developed dementia.

Along with his wife, he is survived by five daughters and 12 grandchildren. His son died in 2005.

Marilyn Rose said a memorial will be held June 11 in Iowa City.

Asparagus class offered in Mason County May 3

There are only two weeks left until the annual May's Lick Asparagus Festival on Saturday, May 19. With that in mind, a class on raising and cooking asparagus will be offered May 3 at the Mason County Extension Office.

The Mason County Extension office is offering the class to teach the public about growing and cooking with asparagus.

Asparagus is a great crop to grow; after planting and establishment, it can be enjoyed for many years.

Other than many of our common herbs, asparagus is one of the only edible perennial plants that comes back year after year.

Many backyard gardeners enjoy having a patch of asparagus. Local Maysville resident, Ernie Hillenmeyer, keeps several asparagus beds in his backyard garden in town.

Tracey Parriman, Horticulture Agent with Mason County, hopes to encourage local residents in all areas of the county to participate in some sort of gardening, "people do not realize that you can grow fresh vegetables in even the smallest of spaces.

Container gardens have become very popular in urban settings." The University of Kentucky's Extension Program offers gardening publications for home gardens with big and little spaces.

If you would like more information on home gardening, make sure to stop by the Extension Office. Call the extension office to sign up for the class at 564-6808.

Eddie Butler is named Kentucky Logger of the Year

Eddie Butler of Vanceburg, was recently honored as the 2011 Kentucky Logger of the Year at the Kentucky Forest Industries Association 47th Annual Meeting in Louisville. Nathan Hall with Kentucky Division of Forestry nominated Butler for the award. In addition to a plaque recognizing their achievement, a Stihl chainsaw was also presented to the company and was sponsored by the Kentucky Tree Farm Committee. Butler harvests timber throughout northeastern Kentucky and was selected from candidates submitted from around the state.

He operates with a three-person crew with all trained as Kentucky Master Loggers. The Kentucky Master Logger program trains loggers to incorporate proper harvesting techniques, operate safely and use best management practices to protect water quality.

Butler has been logging for over 30 years and has an excellent professional relationship with landowners and the forest industry. He is committed to serving the landowner and often increases property value by seeding and improving access roads after logging. Butler and his crew take tremendous pride in protecting the trees that they leave after the harvest for regeneration and making sure that water quality is protected on the harvest site and that all water quality regulations are followed properly.

Butler and crew use two skidders, knuckleboom loader with a cut off saw, dozer and log trucks along with chainsaws to harvest trees on private forestland. The crew operates a wide range of equipment that makes for an efficient operation to harvest timber in an environmentally safe manner to serve as stewards of the land. They take every opportunity to promote the importance of the logging industry and sell logs to a wide range of markets to maximize financial returns to the landowner while serving industry demands.

The Kentucky Tree Farm Committee is sponsored by KFIA which is a trade association dedicated to serving and promoting the forest products industry of Kentucky. Founded in 1965, it has over 600 members in the areas of primary and secondary wood industry, supplier and service industries, wholesale, loggers and landowners. KFIA promotes sound forest management through the Sustainable Forestry Initiative. For more information about the association or the Kentucky Tree Farm Program contact Bob Bauer at 502/695-3979.

DOW JONES AVERAGE HITS HIGHEST
MARK SINCE '07

NEW YORK | The fastest growth in U.S. manufacturing in 10 months gave stocks a lift Tuesday and pushed the Dow Jones industrial average to its highest close in more than four years.

Manufacturing expanded last month at the strongest pace since June, according to the Institute for Supply Management. Orders, hiring and production all rose.

A measure of manufacturing employment also reached a nine-month high, a hopeful sign ahead of Friday's monthly jobs report.

The manufacturing news jolted stock indexes out of a morning stupor, although the gains waned throughout the afternoon. The Dow added 65.69 points to 13,279.32, its highest closing mark since Dec. 28, 2007, during the first month of the Great Recession.

"It definitely changed the direction of markets," said Jack Ablin, chief investment officer at Harris Private Bank.

Treasury prices fell, and benchmark crude oil rose $1.29 to settle at $106.16 per barrel. Both of those things tend to happen when investors expect stronger economic growth.

Ablin saw an irony in the reaction to the ISM report. Europe's debt crisis has knocked markets around for months, jerking stocks down on worries its troubles could cross the Atlantic. But Europe's woes have made U.S. manufacturers look more attractive to companies, Ablin said.

"It's gotten to a point over last 10 years where it's better to manufacture here than in pretty much any other developed country in the world," he said.

In a separate report Tuesday, the Commerce Department said construction spending ticked up in March, following two months of declines.

Sam Stovall, chief equity strategist at S&P Capital IQ, said the two reports looked like evidence that the U.S. economic recovery is solid despite turmoil in Europe and weaker job creation in March.

"I think investors are encouraged there's at least one place in the world where it's still worth investing," Stovall said. "They're not ready to give up on this bull market yet."

MASON COUNTY 11, ST. PATRICK 1

Royals come up with run-rule W over Saints

TERRY PRATHER, THE LEDGER INDEPENDENT

Mason County's Derek Moore works plateward during his first pitching outing since returning from injury. He got the win as the Royals beat St. Patrick 11-1 on Tuesday.

ZACK KLEMMER

zack.klemme@lee.net

Baseball teams sometimes struggle to maintain the utmost intensity over the course of an entire season.

Mason County is hoping an infusion of senior leadership and a little more pitching will help ease the midseason doldrums.

On a day when the Royals let St. Patrick hang around for most of the game, Mason senior Derek Moore pitched four innings of two-hit ball in his return from injury as the host Royals completed a regular-season sweep of the Saints with an 11-1 win Tuesday evening.

Connor Osborne and Daulton Mason each drove in three runs for Mason (15-10-1). Mason's three-RBI double in the sixth inning gave the Royals a 10-run lead and invoked the mercy rule.

PANTHERS COMPLETE REGULAR SEASON SWEEP OF BATH COUNTY, 61ST DISTRICT

Fleming County claimed its third straight 61st District tournament top seed by finishing off a doubleheader sweep of Bath County in Owingsville on Tuesday.

First the Panthers completed a 5-2 win in a game delayed by rain from last Wednesday in Flemingsburg. Desmond McAdams finishes as the pitcher of record in that game, and combining the two halves, Travis Taylor racked up three hits and Bryson McKee and Heath Burnett had two apiece.

McAdams also won Tuesday's second game, fanning 14 Wildcats, eight looking, in the 11-5 win.

Taylor went 2-for-4 with two RBI, Burnett was 2-for-4 and Cody Stewart was 2-for-4 in the nightcap. Brady Saunders drove in three runs, Brett Fawns had two RBI and McKee drew four of the 12 walks Bath issued.

Fleming (13-10) finished 6-0 against district opponents and will play fourth-seed Menifee County in the district semis.

MONDAY: POLAR BEARS RUN-RULE BLACK DEVILS

MOUNT OLIVET | Bracken County downed Deming 21-6 Monday night in a five-inning affair.

The Polar Bears took an early 5-2 lead after one frame. Bracken's Jarrett Moore picked up the win on the hill, throwing a complete game and giving up five runs on eight hits while fanning five batters.

Offensively for the Bears (13-9), Connor Rigg, Eli Florer and Jacob Houston had three hits each. Florer hit two home runs and collected four RBI. Houston also homered and racked up three RBI. Additionally, Josh Cummins and Zach Williams had a pair of hits and three RBI apiece. Travis Bishop was 1-for-2 with three RBI.

The Deming (4-11) offense was highlighted by Jordan Earlywine's three-run home run in the fourth inning. He went 2-for-3 with three RBI. Calvin Schalch was also 2-for-3. — LI

MONDAY: RIPLEY RALLIES FOR 11-6 SHL DEFEAT OF MANCHESTER

Again on Monday, the early innings weren't the problem for visiting Manchester, it was the late frames as Ripley came back from 5-0 and 6-5 deficits to win 11-6.

The Greyhounds led 5-0 before Ripley plated five in the bottom of the fourth inning. Manchester went ahead again 6-5 in the fifth, but the Blue Jays scored three runs in the fifth and three in the sixth.

The Blue Jays' Brad Kirschner and Tommy Ramsey each went 2-for-3 with three RBI. Tyler Planck drove in two runs and got the win in relief, and Dylan Arnett, Ryan Poole and Bryce Hill were all 2-for-3.

Travis Combs was the only Hound with a multi-hit day, getting two of Manchester's knocks.

Dylan Ricketts was Manchester's pitcher of record.

The two Southern Hills League Division II teams are slated to meet again May 8 in Manchester. — LI

REDS' SERIES OPENER VS. CUBS POSTPONED

CINCINNATI | Tuesday's series opener between the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds was postponed because lines of thunderstorms moved through the area. The game wasn't immediately rescheduled.

It was the first postponement for both teams this season and the fifth overall at Great American Ball Park, which opened in 2003. The game was called two hours after the scheduled start Tuesday night. — AP

Lady Panthers bunt way to sixth consecutive victory

chuck.hamilton@lee.net

The visiting Fleming County Lady Panthers executed their brand of small ball effectively in defeating Mason County 10-0 in a mercy-rule-shortened six-inning game on Monday evening in Maysville.

The win was the sixth consecutive for Fleming, which improved to 13-12 on the season. The Lady Royals fell to 8-15 after dropping their fifth in a row.

Fleming scored twice in the opening frame and added three more in the third on only a pair of hits. Kira Brown led off the game with a walk and moved to second base on Mandy Boyd's sacrifice bunt, and both runners advanced a base when the throw to first got away for an error. After Mason's Kortney Carver retired the next two Lady Panthers on a pop-up and a strikeout, Paige Hurst plated Boyd with the second run of the inning. Brown scored when Carver's strikeout pitch went into the dirt, forcing the Mason catcher to throw to first base for the putout and Brown hustled home with the first Fleming run.

Fleming freshman pitcher Kayla Biddle went the distance for the Lady Panthers, allowing just four hits and working herself out of several jams. Mason's Abby Huff and Leigh Newdigate both came up with solid two-base hits in each of the first two innings but were left stranded.

"Kayla pitched well," said Fleming coach Nathan Ryver. "She did have five walks and no strikeouts but we played great defense and didn't make an error. The wind was blowing hard today but our outfielders did a great job of making the plays on some tricky fly balls."

In the top of the third inning, Fleming's Rachel Boyd led off with a base on balls, went to second on Brown's sacrifice bunt and scored on an error. Brown scored the second of her four runs after reaching on the error, moving to third on another miscue and scoring on

MONDAY: RUSSELL 9, LEWIS COUNTY 5

Lions' win streak snapped by improved Red Devils

JAYME PRICE

For The Ledger Independent

VANCEBURG | If Russell was flying under the radar entering its matchup with 16th Region leader Lewis County Monday, the Red Devils are likely showing up on everyone's map now.

After all, Russell sported a 7-13 record going in and had lost to Lewis County 9-5 in the first meeting on its home field. But the Red Devils turned the tables this time, jumping ahead early and riding a commanding performance on the mound from Alex Jones to snap Lewis County's 14-game winning streak, 9-5.

Russell (8-13) is on a four-game upswing, having put 44 runs on the scoreboard during that span. Lions coach Keith Prater acknowledged he expects his team learned a valuable lesson in the loss.

"If we gained anything from this it's that we have to come ready to play every day," Prater said. "As the number-one team in the region, the bull's eye gets bigger every time you win. This knocked us down a notch and we understand we can be beat."

Jones, a sophomore, went the distance in earning the victory. The left-hander held the Lions (17-3) to just three hits, struck out five and threw 67 strikes in 111 pitches.

"You can't win many games with three hits, especially when you give up 11," Prater said. "The left-hander did a good job. We struggle with kids that don't throw 80 (mph). It seems if (the opponent) puts somebody up there that throws a little junk, we struggle with it."

Russell got the scoring started with three runs in the second inning, with four players notching singles. All three runs came with two outs as Sean Murphy, Troy Huffine and Zach Thompson each drove in runs.

Philadelphia 76ers guard Jrue Holiday (11) drives to the basket against Chicago Bulls center Joakim Noah (13) and forward Luol Deng during the second quarter of the 76ers' victory in Chicago on Tuesday.

Sixers pull away in third, beat Bulls to tie series

ANDREW SELIGMAN

Associated Press

CHICAGO | Jrue Holiday scored 26 points, Lou Williams added 20 and the Philadelphia 76ers beat Chicago 109-92 on Tuesday night to even their first-round series in the Bulls' first game since Derrick Rose's season-ending knee injury.

The superstar point guard received a standing ovation and waved to the crowd as he limped onto the court to present the game ball, then watched from a suite as the 76ers simply blitzed the Bulls in the third quarter.

They outscored Chicago 36-14 in the period, turning an eight-point deficit into an 83-69 lead, and pulled even with the league's top-seeded team. Game 3 is Friday in Philadelphia.

Holiday was 11 of 15 from the field, and the Sixers shot 59 percent overall. Williams came up big, going 8 of 13 after hitting just 1 of 6 shots in the opener, and Chicago product Evan Turner chipped in with 19 points, seven rebounds and six assists.

Joakim Noah led the Bulls with 21 points and eight rebounds. John Lucas III scored 15 points, but Carlos Boozer scored just nine and Luol Deng finished with eight. More alarming, the Bulls simply couldn't stop the Sixers, particularly in the third quarter.

Turner scored 11 points in the period, and Philadelphia wiped out a 55-47 deficit.

The Sixers were leading 68-61 midway through the quarter after a 12-0 run that Elton Brand started with a foul-line jumper. Then, after a basket by C.J. Watson, Andre Iguodala threw down a thunderous one-handed dunk over Deng for a three-point play that drew plenty of oohs, aahs and groans from a crowd that felt this one slipping away.

MASON

FROM A7

Logan Brown went 2-for-3 with a pair of RBI, and Logan Sapp was 2-for-3 and drove in one. St. Patrick (3-9) got its lone tally in the second frame when Chase Ralston came home on a Royals error on a double steal. Mason coach Tom Posey would have liked to see more fire from his team, but will take the win after a tournament at Harrison County last Thursday and Saturday saw the Royals go 1-2, dropping the third game to Fleming County. A victory would have given Mason a winning weekend and a season series defeat of the border rival Panthers.

“We’ve gotta hit the ball earlier and we gotta be more consistent on hitting the ball,” Posey said. “The kids didn’t play bad tonight, (but) we need to get the intensity up every game. We’re up and down sometimes, just like our bats have been up and down. We just gotta be more consistent.” Getting Moore back after he missed most of the season to date due to a leg injury helps. “He did a good job for us throwing there,” Posey said. “He’s a senior, he’s got experience and that’s just the senior leadership that he’s got for us.” The Saints, meanwhile, struggled against Moore and didn’t get a hit in two innings against reliever Aaron Scillely. Two other things skipper Ronnie Clos didn’t like were struggles to throw strikes and get the signs on the bases. “We didn’t get the pitching. Seven runs (allowed in the) first three innings, how many walks? How many wild pitches?” he asked rhetorically. “I’m not ashamed of us. What I am upset with ‘em: missing signs. (It’s) midseason and we’re not catching the signs.” Mason jumped on top in its first inning and led throughout. Brown singled home Lukas Greenhill, and Trevor Taylor scored on a Saints error. Ralston’s run cut that edge in half, but a patient Royals order added three runs in the second inning, as 14 of the first 17 pitches in the inning from William McKay sailed outside the strike zone. Brown’s sacrifice fly drove in Bryce Gardner and Osborne laced a two-run double to the fence in left-center, scoring Scillely and Greenhill. Sapp’s single plated Mason in the third frame, and courtesy runner Ryan Johnson crossed the dish on Greenhill’s groundout for a 7-1 lead. A steady drizzle in the fifth inning did nothing more than get everyone a little wet. And in the bottom of the sixth, Osborne singled home Brown before Mason’s bases-clearing double scored Osborne, Taylor and Nathan Cracraft to end the game a half-inning early. With the win, the Royals are 5-0 against district opponents with one game left against Augusta on May 18. The 39th District tournament draw is next Wednesday at an athletic directors’ meeting in Cynthia, Posey said. Mason hosts Deming this evening at 7 p.m. in a game moved up from its original scheduled date of May 17. That contest will follow a middle school game at 5. The Saints return to action in a Saturday doubleheader at Eminence.

Abby Miller’s sac bunt. Mandy Boyd, who also reached on a sac bunt and an error, scored on Cristi Petersen’s groundout for the third run of the frame. The Lady Royals mounted a serious threat in their half of the third. With one out, Aimee Arthur lined a single to left field but she was forced out at second on a grounder to second base. Arthur was also injured on the play when she went into the bag awkwardly and had to leave the game.

Biddle walked Irwin and Bethany Foister to load the bases but coaxed Newdigate to pop out to shortstop to end the inning. After reliever Karissa Greenhill blanked the Lady Panthers in the fourth inning, Fleming struck with three more runs in the fifth before adding two in the sixth. Brown led off the fifth with a walk, went to second on Mandy Boyd’s line single to left, swiped third on a delayed steal and scored on an error. Boyd, who stole second and third, was plated on a single to right field from Hurst. Petersen, who reached on a bunt single prior to Hurst’s base hit, scored when Hurst got involved in a rundown between first and second before sliding safely back into the first base bag. The pair of sixth inning runs were scored on RBI singles to left field from Mandy Boyd and Miller, plating Sarah Boyd and Brown, respectively. Mason coach Meredith Fraysure saw some good and not-so-good from her team. “We hit the ball very hard today but right at people and it’s frustrating,” Fraysure said. “Fleming always plays good defense and they don’t give you anything. We also left too many runners on base in crucial situations. We had some communication issues with our infield tonight and Fleming took advantage of that by taking extra bases on us.” Ryver was pleased with the way his team performed. “We hit the ball a little better tonight and bunted a lot better than we have recently,” he said. “But the big difference was being extremely aggressive on the basepaths. We made ‘em make plays and they had some trouble at times making them. I was happy to see Mandy get a couple of solid hits tonight, she’s really worked at it and making a little tweak in the way she swings has really helped her at the plate.”

CARDINALS TO RETIRE LA RUSSA'S NO. 10

ST. LOUIS | The St. Louis Cardinals are wasting no time honoring Tony La Russa, announcing they will retire their former manager’s No. 10 later this month. La Russa retired last fall after leading the franchise to a second World Series title in his 16 seasons. He left the game ranked third all time in managerial victories, trailing Connie Mack and John McGraw. The jersey will be retired May 11 prior to the Cardinals’ game against the Atlanta Braves. La Russa’s number will become the 12th retired by the Cardinals and first since Whitey Herzog’s No. 24 in 2010, and they’re the only managers who did not play for the team to have their uniform numbers retired. — AP

Forklift Operator Training

The Generation Center will be offering Forklift Operator Training. This class fulfills OSHA requirements for forklift training. Classroom instruction will be provided on lift and operational safety with focused discussion on lift equipment in your work place and industry as well as hands-on instruction.

The first class will be on Saturday May 19th at 8 a.m. Class length is approximately 4 hours plus the hands-on evaluation. Each participant will have to take both a written and practical examination.

A non-refundable fee of $50 per student must be paid prior to class start. Students must also present a valid vehicle drivers license and will receive a forklift operator license upon successful completion of the course.

OSHA 1910.178 required 3-year forklift operator refresher training and this class are also available by appointment.

Please contact Marilyn at 937-331-3801 or David at 937-331-3802 for inquiries, reservations, or for a free consultation.

MONDAY: ST. PATRICK 4, PARIS 2

Saints celebrate Senior Night by snapping skid

ZACK KLEMME
zack.klemme@lee.net

Three of St. Patrick's seniors have played baseball for the Saints since they were eighth-graders. Each was vital to his team's Senior Night victory against Paris on Monday.

Host St. Patrick got clutch run-scoring singles from Jon Litzinger and Patton Kern to go along with Ryan Swolsky's shut-down pitching performance. The sum was a 4-2 Saints win, their first in a month.

Litzinger went 2-for-3 and drove in three runs, including the game-winning RBI single in the bottom of the fifth, and Kern's two-out sixth-inning base knock added an insurance run.

Swolsky held the Greyhounds to five hits and three walks, fanning six and yielding no runs in the last five innings.

Junior Harrison Applegate went 3-for-3, scored two runs and swiped five bases.

The Saints (3-8) had lost six straight coming in, but at least for one night, those struggles meant nothing.

"We've been playing real bad, but this takes all that away. Takes it all away," St. Patrick coach Ronnie Clos said. "Kern, Litzinger, Swolsky, they've been playing for five years. They deserve this win."

Those three were honored before the game, along with classmates Chase Ralston, Jacob Heller and Wesley Mason. Paris' lone senior, Oscar Alamilla, was also recognized, although he was not present due to a senior trip.

Swolsky allowed a run in each of the first two innings, but held Paris (6-13) scoreless the rest of the way. He left the bases loaded with Hounds in the fourth inning and stranded the potential tying run at third in the sixth inning in the form of Jacob Myers.

The Saints' defensive effort included a game-ending double play in which shortstop Applegate flipped the ball underhanded to Heller, who snared it barehanded and completed the turn to Litzinger at first.

"Good pitching, good defense," Clos said. "I thought it was the best game we've played in a few years."

"I thought we played excellent defense. We all played good defense. We had people out of position, but Swolsky (did a) great job pitching. He kept 'em off-balance all night."

Paris scored first in the top of the first frame when Logan West singled home Daniel Lemons with two outs.

The Saints doubled that output in their first inning. With the bases loaded and two away, Litzinger blooped a single down the right-field line to plate Applegate and Kern.

The Hounds tied it back up in the second inning. Jawan Dumphord reached on an infield single, then induced a throwing error stealing third and trotted home.

The score stayed deadlocked through the next three innings until St. Patrick's William McKay doubled to right-center with one out in the bottom of the fifth inning.

Courtesy runner Bailey Jodrey took third on a passed ball and Litzinger's single dropped into left field to break the tie.

Kern singled to left with two down in the sixth inning to score Applegate from second, which he had stolen, for the final tally.

The teams split the season series. Paris won 11-3 on March 19 in each squad's season opener.

Pierce leads Rondo-less Celtics past Hawks, 87-80

PAUL NEWBERRY
Associated Press

ATLANTA | Paul Pierce battled through another tough shooting night to score 36 points and the Boston Celtics wiped out Atlanta's 11-point lead in the second half even without Rajon Rondo, stunning the Hawks 87-80 on Tuesday in Game 2 of the Eastern Conference playoffs.

The series is tied 1-1. Game 3 is Friday night in Boston, and Rondo will be back for the Celtics in that one, his shorthanded team having claimed the home-court edge. The stellar point guard sat out a one-game suspension for bumping an official in the opener.

The Hawks appeared to be in control when they pushed out to a 65-54 lead late in the third quarter. But Boston sliced it to 66-61 by the end of the period, and Pierce led a dominating fourth.

The Celtics were up 74-72 when a quick spurt essentially finished the Hawks, especially when Josh Smith went out late in the game with a sprained left knee.

Joe Johnson turned it over, part of another tough game for the Hawks star, sparking a fast break that ended with a give-and-go from Avery Bradley to Pierce for a dunk. After Jeff Teague missed badly on a jumper, Pierce came down and hit his first 3-pointer of the series after missing his 10, stretching the lead to 79-72 with 3½ minutes left.

The Hawks called a timeout, but no need. This one was over.

Atlanta's last hurrah ended when Johnson missed a free throw with a chance to close the gap to two points with 1:35 remaining. Kevin Garnett was hacked at the other end and made both his foul shots, Johnson missed a wild 3 from the top of the key and chants of "Let's go Celtics!" erupted at Philips Arena while the red-clad fans headed for the exits.

Pierce scored Boston's first nine points but struggled mightily through the second and third quarters.

He finished 12 of 26 and came through when the Celtics needed him, especially with the offense a bit out of sync without its floor leader — heck, he even dropped to his knee and Tebowed when it was apparent the Celtics had this one all locked up.

LEWIS

FROM A7

Lewis County looked to answer in its half of the inning as Corey Davis led off getting hit by a pitch, but a double play ended the threat.

The Red Devils struck for five more runs in the third on three hits, with two runs scoring on a Lewis County error. Thompson then capped the scoring with his second and third runs batted in with a bases-clearing double, making the score 8-0.

"Like any high school game, pitching was the key," Russell coach Mike Martino said. "(Jones) shut them down through about four innings and we were able to get out in front. We're hitting the ball pretty good right now and if our pitchers can keep us in games I think we'll win more than we'll lose."

The Lions again got a man on in their half of the inning as Grant Liles drew a one-out walk. But Jones quickly picked him off at first for the second out and then got Sammy Holder to pop out to the shortstop and end the threat.

"We just couldn't hit the ball and put it in play like we normally do to make things happen," Prater said. "When those things don't happen it's hard to get motivated and stay in the game, but we didn't give up, battled back and put five runs up against a very good team."

Indeed the Lions did rally to get three runs back in the fourth, taking advantage of two Russell errors. Levi Clark scored on a passed ball after getting his team's first hit of the game. Liles and Davis then both scored after a forceout at second turned into an error on the ensuing throw to first.

Liles added another Lewis County run in the fifth after reaching on an error, advancing to third on two wild pitches from Jones and then scoring on Holder's grounder to third.

Jordan Davis capped the scoring in the bottom of the seventh, entering as a courtesy runner for Chris Wampler, who was hit by a pitch. Davis went to third on an errant pick-off attempt and then scored on a sacrifice fly.

The game was the first for the Lewis in just under a week, falling victim to the weather.

ASPIRIN CAUTION FOR SENIORS

Many seniors are advised to take a daily aspirin to lower their risk of heart attack and stroke. However, new research suggests that adhering to this daily aspirin regimen may also increase mature adults' risk of developing late-stage age-related macular degeneration. At this point, although there is no indication that aspirin is directly responsible for causing the vision loss associated with this disease, there are indications that daily aspirin use exacerbates the eye disorder in some way. These adverse effects seem to be linked with the less common, more severe "wet" form of AMD, which is caused by leaking blood vessels in the eyes. The ophthalmologist can help seniors assess the risks and benefits associated with taking daily aspirin.

Creative Cause gets trainer Harrington to 1st Derby at age 71

BETH HARRIS
Associated Press

LOUISVILLE | Mike Harrington is content watching the hubbub of Kentucky Derby week from afar. The 71-year-old trainer is happily tucked away in a non-descript barn that lacks even the teeniest view of Churchill Downs' magnificent Twin Spires.

Let the visitors be entertained by Bob Baffert's jokes or eavesdrop on Todd Pletcher's training tidbits. Harrington prefers laying low with Creative Cause, likely to be one of the top betting choices for Saturday's race.

The gray-roan colt has never finished out of the money in any of his eight career races, posting four wins, two seconds and two thirds. He's among the best of five strong California-based horses in the expected 20-horse field. Of course, Baffert and Pletcher hold their usual strong hand, with two Derby horses each.

Harrington has but one. "This is probably two derbies for me," he said Tuesday. "It's my first and my last."

He certainly has the pedigree to be here.

Harrington followed his father, grandfather and great-grandfather into the business, starting out training and racing quarter horses at bush tracks as a teenager. Later, he became a veterinarian and worked the racetracks until returning to training full time nearly 20 years ago.

Assistant trainer John Cisneros gallops Kentucky Derby hopeful Creative Cause at Churchill Downs in Louisville on Monday. The 138th running of the Kentucky Derby is Saturday.

Creative Cause is the best horse he's ever had.

"Everybody grows up dreaming of going to the Kentucky Derby and most people realize they're probably never going to make it, and I never thought I would make it," he said. "You got guys like Baffert and Pletcher who have most of them (horses), so for a little guy like me it's pretty rewarding."

The colt is owned by Heinz Steinmann, an 80-year-old credited with bringing skiing to California from his native Switzerland. He owns Mountain High resort in Wrightwood, Calif., located in the mountains north of Los Angeles. He's been Harrington's main client for years and the two teamed to run Swiss Yodeler, who won some of California's biggest stakes races and was a well-known stallion in the late 1990s.

Creative Cause has mixed it up on the Derby prep trail with Baffert's top colt, Bodemeister, and trainer Doug O'Neill's I'll Have Another. He beat Bodemeister to win the San Felipe Stakes, and lost by a nose to I'll Have Another in the Santa Anita Derby last month. As a 2-year-old, Creative Cause beat I'll Have Another in the Best Pal Stakes and last fall finished third behind Derby rivals Hansen and Union Rags in the Breeders' Cup Juvenile at Churchill Downs.

"He falls under the radar, which I like. I don't want him to be the favorite, I don't want everybody talking about him," Harrington said. "Everybody should be talking about Bodemeister, although my horse outrun him. Everybody should be talking about I'll Have Another, although I outrun him also. Those three horses have traded punches, so who knows?"

Bodemeister, along with Hansen and Trinniberg, is expected to set a fast pace in the 1 1/4-mile Derby. Creative Cause likes to tuck in behind the leaders and stalk the pace. I'll Have Another has good speed, but usually pushes the pace rather than sets it. O'Neill figures I'll Have Another could lag in the middle of the pack.

"You just need to be running through the stretch," O'Neill said. "It's not so much how fast you're running early but if you can stay out of trouble and have horse to run down the lane, you got a chance."

Creative Cause has trained well on Churchill's dirt track since arriving from Los Angeles. Harrington figures he'll push him a bit harder on Friday to take the edge off so the colt won't be too high-strung on Saturday, when more than 100,000 screaming fans will be on hand to watch him and the other Derby horses walk from the barn to the paddock.

"It's a damn long ways over there," said Harrington, who may skip the procession that some trainers say makes for an indelible Derby memory. "My main focus is being able to perform in the paddock and get the saddle on him. If the horse gets there 20 minutes before I do, what good am I going to be?"

Harrington would be easy to pick out of the parade of horses, owners, trainers and handlers. He's the big guy wearing the big cowboy hat, and he's the only first-timer at the Derby among the California-based trainers. Baffert has won three times, O'Neill has been here before, and so has Hall of Famer Jerry Hollendorfer, who will saddle Rousing Sermon.

"I just keep telling people it's just a race the first Saturday in May. This horse has run against good horses," said Harrington, who gladly accepted a bottle of his favorite bourbon from a couple of barn visitors. "It's not my first rodeo, it's not like I'm going to be so overwhelmed that I can't get out of bed in the morning."

People keep telling Harrington he should be excited about finally having a Derby horse, but he doesn't see a win changing his life.

"I doubt that I'll get a flood of new horses. I don't even want more clients," he said. "I obviously would like more horses like this, but these kind of horses are really, really hard to come by."

RELAY FOR LIFE OF MASON COUNTY

Held on June 8 and 9

Mason County Schools Indoor Track Facility

One important aspect of the American Cancer Society Relay For Life is the opportunity for people to come together to remember loved ones lost to cancer and honor those who have won their battle.

One of the most moving parts of the event is the Luminaria Ceremony.

As the sun sets and darkness falls, the night is brightened by the glow of illuminated bags called Luminaria, each bearing the name of someone who has battled cancer. Some celebrate cancer survivors, while others help us honor and remember those gone to soon. All represent someone special who has been profoundly affected by cancer and the family and friends who continue to fight back in their honor.

Would you like to honor or remember someone with a Luminaria during the Relay For Life Luminaria Ceremony?

To purchase your Luminaria, Call Barbie Redmond at 606-564-1662

RELAY FOR LIFE: NOT the All-Nighter you're used to!

SIXERS

FROM A7

Things didn't get much better for Chicago after that.

The 76ers continued to pour it on, with Iguodala throwing down another vicious dunk late in the quarter and then hitting Williams with an alley-oop pass that made it 83-69 heading into the fourth.

It was a rough night for the Bulls, who insist they have enough to make a championship run even though they lost Rose to a torn ACL in his left knee near the end of Game 1.

After all, they know how to win without him.

Rose missed 27 games during the regular season because of a variety of injuries, and the Bulls did just fine, going 18-9. Throw in injuries to Richard Hamilton and Deng, and they were able to go with their projected starting five just 15 times, yet they still captured home-court advantage throughout the playoffs for the second straight season.

Notes: The Sixers shuffled their lineup from Game 1, with Turner starting for Jodie Meeks and C Spencer Hawes for Lavy Allen. ... Scottie Pippen says the Bulls still are the team to beat even without Rose. In an open letter to the team posted Tuesday on the Bulls' website, Pippen wrote, "You're still the best team in the NBA until an opponent proves otherwise." The Hall of Famer also compared the loss of Rose to Michael Jordan's first retirement and pointed out the 1993-94 team won 55 games. Pippen said the Bulls "believed in ourselves" and never "felt sorry for ourselves" ... Chicago's Tom Thibodeau finished second in the Coach of the Year voting to San Antonio's Gregg Popovich after winning the award last season.

Stinging gas sends May Day protesters fleeing

ACTIVISTS JOIN PROTESTS
ACROSS THE COUNTRY

TERRY COLLINS
Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. | Hundreds of activists across the U.S. joined the world-wide May Day protests on Tuesday, with Occupy Wall Street members in several cities leading demonstrations and in some cases clashing with police.

In Oakland, Calif., stinging gas sent protesters fleeing a downtown intersection where they were demonstrating. It was unclear whether police fired the gas, but officers took four people into custody.

Black-clad protesters in Seattle used sticks to smash downtown windows and ran through the streets disrupting traffic.

In New York, police in riot gear lined the front of a Bank of America, facing several dozen Occupy activists marching behind barricades. "Bank of America. Bad for America!" they chanted. About 50 demonstrators in Chicago rallied outside another of the bank's branches.

Across the world, protests drew tens of thousands of demonstrators into the streets from the Philippines to Spain. They demanded everything from wage increases to an end to austerity measures.

Tuesday's U.S. protests were the most visible organizing effort by anti-Wall Street groups since Occupy encampments were dismantled last fall. May Day protests have in recent years focused on immigrant rights.

From New York to San Francisco, organizers of the various demonstrations, strikes and acts of civil disobedience said they were not too concerned about muddling their messages. They noted that the movements have similar goals: jobs, fair wages and equality.

Organizers of Chicago's rally said they welcomed participation from the Occupy groups. "I definitely see it as an enrichment of it," Orlando Sepulveda said. "It's great."

In Los Angeles, at least a half a dozen rallies were planned. A rally was also planned in Minneapolis.

In Atlanta, about 100 people rallied outside the state Capitol, where a law targeting illegal immigration was passed last year. They called for an end to local-federal partnerships to enforce immigration law.

The May Day protest was significantly smaller than last year's, which drew about 1,000 people. Organizers said turnout last year was greater, in part, because the rally was on a Sunday, rather than during the work week.

In the San Francisco Bay area, service on the Golden Gate Ferry was shut down as ferry workers went on strike. They have been in contract negotiations for a year in a dispute over health care coverage.

A coalition of bridge and bus workers said they would honor a picket line of at least 50 workers outside the ferry terminal. They were joined by some Occupy protesters.

Organizers backed away from earlier calls to block the Golden Gate Bridge, but scores of police — some carrying helmets and batons — lined the span during the morning rush hour. Some protesters with signs stood nearby, but did not disrupt traffic.

Across the Bay in Oakland, which has been the scene of some of the fiercest clashes between police and Occupy protesters in recent months, crowds had blocked intersections and tried to force businesses to shut down for not observing calls for a "general strike."

Indian sailors recount pirate attack

ERIKA KINETZ
Associated Press

MUMBAI, India | The alarm sounded at 6:40 a.m. It could have been a fire or a man overboard. But in the waters off the coast of Oman near the Gulf of Aden, the sound meant one thing to the crew of the Enrica Ievoli: pirates.

The ship was carrying 15,000 tons of caustic soda from Iran to Turkey when it was hijacked by Somali pirates, who held the 18-man crew hostage for four long months.

The seven Indian crew members on board the Italian ship landed in Mumbai on Tuesday.

This account of their capture and release is based on interviews with five crew members and two shipping company officials.

Roopendran Parrakat, 51, had been watching the unidentified boat since he came on duty shortly before 6 a.m. on Dec. 27. He and two other crew members took turns peering through binoculars at the vessel, which showed up on the Enrica Ievoli's radar as an ominous blip moving far too fast toward their ship.

"Normally, you get GPS data," Parrakat said. "This vessel had no details, no name, nothing."

Forty minutes later the captain sounded the alarm, jolting Shantilal Harji Solanki awake.

"I had a feeling pirates were around," said Solanki, 52, who worked as a mechanic on the ship.

He stashed his gold prayer beads in an air conditioning duct before heading up to the ship's bridge, the designated meeting point in case of emergency.

The captain told the assembled crew that pirates were approaching.

The next hour unfolded in slow motion. A skiff set out from the pirate's mother ship.

The crew watched from the bridge as four men in shorts and T-shirts hoisted a ladder and climbed on board.

Two carried AK-47s. They fired shots in the air and called themselves pirates. They said they were from Somalia.

The pirates came up to the bridge and trained their guns on the captain. "They said this boat is hijacked," recalled Solanki. One of the gunmen was shaking. Another man was bleeding, cut on the hand and shoulder by the barbed wire the crew had wrapped around the ship to stave off pirates before entering the dangerous waters. Five more Somalis soon climbed on board.

The youngest was 14, the oldest in his fifties.

The leader carried a pistol. He was perhaps 55, thin, with a gentle way of talking. He didn't seem dangerous. The men called him Maya.

Maya told the crew he didn't want to harm them, that there would be no killing if they got money.

"The leader told us we are hijacking this vessel for money," said Parrakat. "We need this money for our country. We are doing this for our country."

Maybe if they'd cut the power, darkened the boat and locked themselves in some hidden room they could have escaped, one member of the crew said. If they'd only had an armed guard on board, none of this would have happened, others said.

A helicopter flown in by the Turkish navy in response to the captain's distress call arrived 20 minutes too late.

The pirates held the crew in the ship's bridge, a vast room encased in glass at the top of the ship which offered 360 degree views of the surrounding ocean. Half the men got mattresses, the rest slept on blankets.

They had to ask permission to go to the bathroom or take a shower. Pirates always escorted them, one man at a time. Photographs were forbidden.

The pirates led the crew — seven Indians, six Italians and five Ukrainians — one by one to their cabins and took anything that could be sold.

They stole Solanki's two laptop computers, one of which he'd just bought for his daughter, two cell-phones, his watch, his leather shoes and all his money.

After a few days, the ship reached Somali waters and the men were allowed to call home.

Solanki called his wife in Diu, an island north of Mumbai, India's financial capital. "I told my wife, 'I am hijacked. Don't worry, we are OK,'" he recalled.

AUDIT

FROM A1

lawn, take him shopping and even field dress a deer he once shot from his government vehicle.

Farmer's athletic fame launched him on a political career that has plummeted over the past year, largely because of the alleged abuses at the state agency he was twice elected to oversee. State Auditor Adam Edelen released findings Monday from a government review that painted an ugly picture of Farmer's tenure and could lead to a criminal investigation.

"The responsibility of holding accountable a man I once cheered as a kid is a grim one," Edelen told reporters. "But the law makes no distinction between icons and the rest of us, and neither do I."

Though he played more than 20 years ago, the homegrown athlete from impoverished Clay County remains a household name for fans of one of the country's most successful programs. His jersey hangs in the rafters of Rupp Arena alongside the likes of Dan Issel, Pat Riley, Kenny Walker and Sam Bowie.

The state's top prep player as a high-school senior, Farmer was a sharpshooter who spent much of his career as a reserve before earning a role in the starting lineup as a senior. The reasons for fans' reverence go beyond his stats, though, which include a scoring average of 7.6 during his career from 1988 to 1992.

Rather, he and his classmates, dubbed the "Unforgettables," stuck with UK despite a recruiting scandal, embarrassing losing season and coaching change that led other players to desert the program. By the time Farmer and three other seniors graduated, the program had returned to the upper echelon of the sport.

That's partly why defenders started stepping forward immediately after the scathing report was released.

They felt that Farmer, a Republican, was being attacked.

Two-time Republican gubernatorial candidate Larry Forgy insisted the review was done for political reasons by a Democratic state auditor.

"It looks like to me they think there's still some life left in Richie, and they want to squeeze it out," Forgy said.

His former coach, Rick Pitino, said he knows nothing about the accusations, but otherwise defended him during a press conference Monday at his current school, the University of Louisville.

"I love Richie Farmer, always will love Richie Farmer," Pitino said. "He can do no wrong in my eyes. So I don't know what you're talking about. And if he did something wrong, I'll pray for him."

In this April 2012 photo released by Blythe Keller, shows Andy Lin, of Seattle, running on the Burke-Gilman Trail in Seattle. The trail was one of the nation's first rail trails, according to the Rails to Trails Conservancy. Thanks partly to federal legislation and partly to a push by communities and private groups to open up more areas for recreation, the rails-to-trails movement has taken off. The Rails to Trails Conservancy counts more than 1,600 trails covering 20,000 miles and are used by millions of people each year. There are trails in all 50 states.

ABANDONED RAIL CORRIDORS

Associated Press

BETHESDA, Md. | On a route once traversed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, shouts of "On your left" ring out as cyclists pass runners, in-line skaters and families out for a stroll with children and dogs.

The scene along the 11-mile Capital Crescent Trail, which runs from Silver Spring, Md., to Georgetown in Washington, D.C., is being repeated on thousands of miles of trails across America.

Boosted by the federal government and by communities and private groups trying to open up more areas for recreation, the rails-to-trails movement has taken off. The Rails to Trails Conservancy counts more than 1,600 trails covering 20,000 miles and used by millions of people each year. There are trails in all 50 states.

"The biggest advantage is that on these rail trails there are no cars and there are very minimal intersections, and you feel much safer and you don't get interrupted by traffic lights," said Andy Lin, 32, of Seattle, who trains for marathons on the Burke-Gilman and other trails.

The Burke-Gilman Trail, according to the Rails to Trails Conservancy, was one of the nation's first rail trails. Managed by Seattle and King County, it helped inspire dozens of similar projects, the group said on its website, www.railstotrails.org.

The federal Rivers, Trails and Conservation Assistance program helps communities seeking to establish trails. Part of the National Park Service, the agency helps local groups "establish a vision, a concept and point to a funding source," said program manager Charlie Stockman.

Its budget is about $10 million. "It's a person, not a dollar, thing," Stockman said.

The Rails to Trails Conservancy is a partner in the effort. When railroads file notice with the government that they intend to abandon a route, the conservancy alerts communities. A process called railbanking allows communities to preserve the railroad corridor for public use until the railroad wants it back.

"In the event the railroad wants to reactivate the line, it can," said Kelly Pack, director of trail development for the conservancy. "In the interim, communities can develop biking or walking trails."

The conservancy also provides technical assistance in creating trails.

In cases where the railroad only has easement rights, the abandoned property could revert to adjacent landowners. Depending on the length of the corridor, trail advocates might have to negotiate with dozens or hundreds of landowners to convert the abandoned railroad corridor.

The cost of developing a trail can range from $300,000 to $1 million a mile, Pack said. Variables include the cost of acquiring rights to the land, whether bridges or tunnels are on the trail, and the type of surface used. Asphalt, for example, is more expensive than crushed gravel.

Karl Wirsing, Rails to Trails' communications director, said surveys show that people use the trails primarily for health and fitness. Particularly in urban areas, they also may use them to commute to work.

"It's not just quality of life for those residents, but livelihood for those residents," Stockman said. "You see businesses grow up around these trails."

Sometimes there's opposition from people concerned that trails will bring crime and trash to the neighborhood.

HOUSEWORKS

It's gotta be the season

Several questions have darkened the ether lately as HouseWorks readers get ready for the remodeling and gardening season on the horizon.

Q: My mother-in-law has large spot of thatch in her lawn, and she needs help on how to get rid of it. — Belinda

The easiest thing to do — actually the only thing I've ever done — is to rake the thatch loose with a garden (steel-tined) rake. It'll tear up the grass some, but that should bounce back in short order if the lawn's in otherwise good shape.

If not, scatter some grass seed and starter fertilizer and keep it moist for a few weeks.

Autumn is the best time to repair a lawn, but spring is OK as long as you don't put down a pre-emergent fertilizer (it would kill the grass seed as well as the weed seeds).

Q: The Formica counter top in my kitchen is in good shape, but I don't like its color and I can't afford to replace it. Can I paint it?

Yep. It won't be as tough as the original laminate surface, but it should hold up for a few years — perhaps long enough to save up the money to replace it.

First, you'll want to get the surface as pristine clean as you can with soap and water, then wipe everything down with denatured alcohol to clean up any remaining grease or oil.

Lightly sand the surface to roughen it (and clean up again!), then apply a good oil-based primer that's been tinted to the color of your intended top coat. That also should be an oil-based paint, and in both cases I'd roll them on to get the smoothest possible finish.

It probably will take at least two top coats — the thinner the better — with more light sanding in between, to get good coverage. Maybe three.

Q: What do you stuff in a wall to take up space ... so you don't have to use a ton of patching stuff to fill it up before patching the wall surface? — Oregon reader

Frankly, I wouldn't stuff anything in there. It's much simpler to make a patch.

It is, however, one of those things that's a whole lot easier to show than to explain, so bear with me. By the way, this works equally well on drywall or lath-and-plaster walls.

1. Enlarge the damage enough to create a rectangle. Size doesn't matter (actually rectangle doesn't matter, but it makes the rest easier).

2. Cut a scrap of drywall that's 2 inches wider and 2 inches longer than the hole.

3. On the BACK of your piece of drywall, draw lines 1 inch from each edge. Essentially, you'll have outlined your hole in the center of the patch.

4. Score all the lines with a utility knife, then snap the drywall. Carefully peel off the edge pieces, leaving the center patch intact with a 1-inch-wide flange of paper all around. Gently scrape off whatever plaster clings to the flange.

5. Test for fit in the hole and make adjustments as necessary. But don't damage the flange.

6. Butter the wall all around the hole with drywall mud, then press the patch into the hole and the paper flange into the mud. A little mud on the edges of the hole itself often helps.

7. With your widest drywall or putty knife, squish the paper flange into the mud and smooth off the repair. Leave it alone for 24 hours.

8. Top with drywall mud, let dry, sand, mud, dry, sand, etc. as you'd do on any drywall job.

Trust me. They'll never know you were there.

Silver dollar plant can pay off in beauty

TRANSLUCENT SILVER DOLLARS
CAN ADD BEAUTY TO GARDEN,
DRIED FLOWER ARRANGEMENTS

LEE REICH
Associated Press

Whoever said that money doesn't grow on trees was right. It grows on a small, bushy plant.

Just one type of currency, though: silver dollars (Lunaria annua).

You have a couple of options for planning your investment. For quickest returns, sow seed indoors in a seedling flat filled with moist potting soil. Kept at about 70 degrees Fahrenheit, the seeds germinate within two to three weeks. Plant the seedlings outdoors at the same time you plant out tomatoes, then harvest your first dollars later this summer. If you plant very soon, you may still be able to get a return on your investment this year.

Despite the "annua" in the botanical name, however, silver dollar plant often behaves more like a biennial than an annual, growing only leaves the first year then expiring the next year after making flowers and dollars.

The second, more relaxed way to grow silver dollar plant is as a biennial. Sow the seeds outdoors sometime in early summer — timing is not critical — to rake in your dollars early next summer.

Whichever method you choose, give silver dollars a site with well-drained soil in sun or partial shade. Avoid a rich soil, though, or plants put their energy into making leaves at the expense of flowers and dollars.

MORE THAN JUST SILVER DOLLARS

The flowers that foreshadow the silver dollars are pretty, but not enough to warrant giving the plant a prominent spot in your flower bed. A better location is in a separate cutting garden, a wild area, or nestled — and somewhat lost — among other kinds of flowers.

LEE REICH, ASSOCIATED PRESS

In this undated photo, a silver dollar plant (Lunaria annua) is in bloom as seen in New Paltz, N.Y. Whoever said money does not grow on trees was right. It grows on a small, bushy plant. Just one type of currency, though: silver dollars (Lunaria annua). For quickest returns, sow silver dollar seeds indoors in a flat filled with moist potting soil. Kept at about 70 degrees Fahrenheit, the seeds germinate within two to three weeks. Or plant the seedlings outdoors at the same time you plant tomatoes, then harvest your first silver dollars later this summer.

The money plant's flowers have four petals in the shape of a cross, putting it in the Mustard Family, along with broccoli, radish and alyssum. Usually, the flowers are pink or purple, except for one variety with white flowers. For a little more pizzazz, there is a variety, Variegata, with white margins on its leaves.

There is a trail etiquette that's policed by trail users themselves. General rules of the road may apply: “Stay to the right, alert people when you’re passing, those kinds of things” Pack said.

Rick Wagner, 63, of Piercetown, Ind., and his family have been biking on rail trails for 10 years. “We just started seeing how many different states we could ride a trail in,” he said. So far, they’ve hit 14. “You meet really neat people on the trails,” he said. “It’s just like everyone’s on their best behavior.”

A railbed makes a nice biking trail, he said, because “it’s flat, and most of the trails have some shade from trees on one side of the other.”

He said he rode 60 miles on the Little Miami Scenic Trail in Ohio when the thermometer reached 100 degrees. “I didn’t even Silver dollar plant, along with other members of the Mustard Family, ripens its seeds within a dry fruit called a silique. As the silique ripens, the two outside halves dry, then fall away to leave the ripened seeds still on the plant and suspended within a translucent and silvery round septum, about the size of a silver dollar.

For dried flower arrangements, cut stems just as the outsides of the pods are beginning to yellow, then hang them upside down in an airy location. Once the outsides dry, rub them off with your fingers without damaging the delicate membrane between them.

AN INVESTMENT IN 'HONESTY'

You might say the silvery know it was that warm," he said.

Wagner and others have raised about $220,000 to develop a new trail near his home. They've built a trailhead with heated restrooms and lighting. "You need that for people to park and get on the trail," he said.

The latest addition to the trail movement is water trails, according to Stockman. In February, the Chattahoochee River Water Trail in Georgia became the first to be designated under the new National Water Trails System.

"The right-of-way is already there," Stockman said. All that was needed were access points. "You put your canoe in here and take it out there and get your son to drive your car around to the end," he said.

HOW YOU SEE IT

LISTEN TO THE PEOPLE

The Aberdeen Council should let the people know what is going on. We should have a say. They should be voting for the people's desires and not their own whims.

A VOTE FOR OBAMA

I think it is shameful that the Congress can't support the president. He can't get many things approved because of politics. The Republicans fight him on every issue. I will vote for Obama again. He does care about the middle class and the poor. Romney on the other hand really doesn't know what poor is about.

HATERS GONNA HATE

I hope that our new mayor of Aberdeen won't be treated like our former mayor was treated. The haters and tongue waggars are still around and you can't please these people if you try. He needs to carry a big stick and don't trust these people. Watch your back all of the time.

WELCOME BACK

It is kind of exciting to see an old business return to the community. The Pogue Distillery will be a popular tourist attraction and we welcome them back.

EDWARDS SAGA CONTINUES

The John Edwards saga just goes on and on. Where does this ever end? He just gets in deeper. I don't see how Andrew Young is going to keep from getting in trouble with all he did and knows. I guess time will tell.

GAS PRICES HIGH IN FLEMING

This is one Fleming Countian who is really tired of being gouged. In Maysville you can get gas for $3.53 to $3.56 and it is $3.79 in Flemingsburg. In a matter of minutes when oil goes up, the gas goes up at all the stations in Fleming County. I think it is time that Jack Conway does his job. I am fed up.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

STAGGERING DATA ON AMERICAN HOUSEHOLDS

Dear editor, and Friends of the Community,
Housing and Urban Development (HUD) recently released statistical data obtained while researching the American family household. The information received from their study was staggering: 24 million children live apart from their biological fathers; nearly 2 in 3, 64 percent, African-American children live in father-absent homes; 1 in 3, 34 percent, Hispanic children live in father-absent homes; and 1 in 4, 25 percent white children live in father-absent homes.
More fathers need to be connected with their children. Studies have shown that children who live in absent-father homes suffer greatly, and are at a higher risk to use drugs, experience educational and emotional problems and to be victims of child abuse. This is evidence that HUD and local public housing agencies need to do more.
Last year, HUD initiated a nationwide Father's Day event with the goal of connecting fathers and their children through a variety of fun activities and job training resources for fathers. Pubic housing agencies across the nation partnered with local agencies to host a community-wide event. We have been asked to once again reach out to the fathers and their children in our community.
This year the Kentucky Career Center-Maysville (One Stop Center), the Tom Browning Boys and Girls Club and the Housing Authority of Maysville have joined together to host this event on Saturday, June 16, 2012 from 11 a.m. — 2 p.m. The event will be held at the Tom Browning Boys and Girls Club. During this event, fathers and children will be able to participate in games and enjoy a light lunch.
Our goal is to help fathers connect with their families and to help promote a stronger family bond, which will in turn make our community stronger. We are asking local businesses to join us in making this a successful event by donating items to be given away as prizes to the attendees, or to make a monetary donation for the event. If you wish to participate in this event please contact Victor McKay at the Kentucky Career Center nat 606-564-3347.
Thank you for your support in helping us make this event a success!
Sincerely,
Melissa Humphries — Executive Director
Housing Authority of Maysville

Making student loans ‘cool’

“Mellowed by his mood-music background, the president injected the hopelessly stodgy student loan issue with a comical dose of hip and cool:

President Obama “slow jams the news”? Is this a nakedly bold pitch for the youth vote or what?
I’m talking about the president’s appearance Tuesday night on “Late Night with Jimmy Fallon.” In front of a live audience at the University of North Carolina, the nation’s commander-in-chief took charge in “slow jamming the news,” an occasional feature on the late-night show.
It consists of reciting some news of the day with anchorman seriousness while backup singers and The Roots, Fallon’s house band, lay down some smooth jazz in the background, punctuated with appropriate repetitions of “baby.”
The stunt posed a risk, even to Obama’s famously cool stagecraft. Many a middle-ager has bombed with lame attempts to sound cool in front of their children and other young’uns. As a parent, I speak from hard-learned experience. But I can get away with it. It is part of my unwritten job description as a parent to embarrass my kid from time to time. Politicians in public aren’t that lucky.
Obama wisely stuck to a familiar script. Speaking to his collegiate audience, he filled his slow jam with applause lines from the stump speech that he was barnstorming to campuses in Iowa, Colorado and North Carolina — three states that he won in 2008 but that appear to be up for grabs now.
His main issue has strong appeal to the hearts and wallets of college students, post-grads and their families: student loans. It also has a new urgency at the moment. Unless Congress acts, the current subsidized rates on new Stafford student loans will expire in July, doubling the rate borrowers pay from 3.4 percent to 6.8 percent. That difference amounts to an average increase of $1,000 per year per student.
Mellowed by his mood-music background, the president injected the hopelessly stodgy student loan issue with a comical dose of hip and cool:
“Now is not the time,” he said, directly addressing the camera, “to make school more expensive for our young people.”
“Ohhhh, yeah,” Fallon chimed in like Isaac Hayes murmuring sweet nothings into his microphone. “You should listen to the president.”
That’s what the president hopes, especially if it leads to more re-election votes.

He needs to rekindle the Yes-We-Can enthusiasm among young voters that propelled him to the Oval Office in 2008. He has a 17 percentage point advantage over his presumptive Republican rival Romney among voters between 18 and 29, according to a nationwide poll by Harvard University’s Institute of Politics. But almost a third in that age group is undecided. Obama has an advantage with under-30 voters that he needs to energize to offset his deficits with older voters, particularly white, blue-collar males.
One wonders how Romney might attempt to reach more millennials, as many are calling the first youngsters to come of age in this century. He could try a David Letterman “Top Ten List,” although that’s already been done. Texas Gov. Rick Perry tried it as Romney’s Republican rival. He did a good job, but his campaign fizzled out anyway.
Romney is better off playing it straight, as when he offered a straightforward response to Obama’s position on student loans that amounted to two words: Me, too.
“I fully support the effort to extend the low interest rate on student loans,” he told reporters on Monday in what may be his first major move toward the middle as Republican frontrunner.
That’s a switch from his earlier support of the Republican budget plan proposed last month by House Budget Committee Chairman Paul Ryan, a plan that calls for removing the subsidies that keep Stafford loan rates low.
And Speaker John Boehner appeared to be moving toward the middle, too, as he rushed a mostly party-line vote on a $5.9 billion bill to maintain low interest rates for Stafford loans. But familiar partisan disputes erupted over the measure’s funding. The money would come from a provision of Obama’s health care law for breast cancer screening and other preventive measures. Democrats wanted to fund the bill by cutting oil subsidies.
Take careful notes, students. As the clock ticks away, your student loan rates may well be the prize in Congress’ next big partisan faceoff. Choose your own background music.

POLITICAL COMMENTARY

Looking for a second-term fit

RUTH MARCUS

“They want to roll back Wall Street reforms, so suddenly Wall Street is playing by its own rules again. They want to roll back health insurance reform, go back to the days when insurance companies could jack up your rates or deny you coverage without any reason.”

PRESIDENT OBAMA

WASHINGTON — Rolling Stone publisher Jann Wenner arrived in the Oval Office bearing socks. President Obama had admired Wenner’s flashy pair on a previous visit, and this gift fit the bill: one pair salmon with pink squares, the other black and pink stripes.
“These are nice,” the president said. Then he paused. “These may be second-term socks.”
A joke, but as Freud would say ... Is there a flamboyant Obama yearning to be liberated? Does he have wild second-term hosiery stuffed in the back of the presidential sock drawer, waiting for the proper moment to be safely unveiled?
I hope so.
Republican nominee-in-waiting Mitt Romney portrays the president as self-activated Manchurian Candidate, bidding time before springing his diabolical plans on the American people.
Romney seized on the president’s open-microphone moment with Dmitry Medvedev, in which Obama was overheard telling the Russian president, “After my election, I have more flexibility.”
Obama, Romney warned the American Society of News Editors, “does not want to share his real plans before the election, either with the public or with the press.” Obama unbound, Romney told the National Rifle Association, “would be unrestrained by the demands of re-election.”
The word delusional comes to mind. If anything, a second Obama term promises to be conservative, in the technical sense — conserving the achievements of the first term, health care most of all, and protecting them from Republican dismantling.
Indeed, to listen to Obama, the argument for re-election is as much about avoiding that U-turn as about charting the path ahead. “The last thing we can afford to do is to go back to the very same policies that got us into this mess in the first place,” he said at a campaign fundraiser in Michigan the other day. “They want to roll back Wall Street reforms, so suddenly Wall Street is playing by its own rules again. They want to roll back health insurance reform, go back to the days when insurance companies could jack up your rates or deny you coverage without any reason.”

There are a few obvious now-we-can-finally-do-it items for a second term. At the top of the list: completing the president’s pathetically slow evolution on same-sex marriage.
But for the most part, Obama’s agenda for the second term is distinctly, disappointingly unspecific. That may be a problem common to re-election campaigns. After all, the incumbent president inevitably must devote time to defending his record.
Meanwhile, the president who runs, or claims to have run, on a specific platform risks over-interpreting the election results.
For Obama, the shape of a second term, if he wins one, is likely to be defined early on — indeed, even before the inauguration. The Bush tax cuts will expire. The debt ceiling will again need to be raised. The sequester of defense and domestic spending — the result of the supercommittee’s failure to find a rational alternative — will finally take effect.
A responsible presidential campaign would focus on this coming “taxmageddon” and feature competing, detailed solutions. Instead, we’re left with Obama touting the Buffett Rule (an inadequate answer) versus Romney peddling no-pain tax reform (all specific rate cuts, no specified pain).
Speaking to Rolling Stone, Obama seemed to hitch his second-term prospects to the notion that the election results will liberate him by liberating Republicans.
“My hope is that if the American people send a message to them ... and they suffer some losses in this next election, that there’s going to be some self-reflection going on — that it might break the fever,” he said. “My hope is that after this next election, they’ll feel a little more liberated” from the thrall of Rush Limbaugh and Grover Norquist.
Certainly, the president has lacked rational partners across the aisle. But I wonder how much a single election can change — especially when both sides duck the painful choices ahead.
Maybe, if you want to wear the second-term socks, you’ve got to be willing to show a little leg.

EASTER VISIT | Ripley Middle School FCCLA students visited the veterans home on April 5, 2012. They decorated doors with Easter poems and door hangers, and gave out Easter baskets they had made containing candy to each resident along with a card. They then played card bingo with residents and supplied prizes for the winners. One more visit is planned this in May and they hope to continue this project next year. Those attending were: Bailey Adams, Kassey Arnett, Johannah Fisher, Kacy Gilkerson, Craig Horton, Chelsea Jones, Ryan Mason, Amanda Proctor, Taylor Sandlin, Charity York, and Olivia Reese.

DAR members attend Kentucky State Conference

Members of Maysville's Limestone Chapter attended the Kentucky State Conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution on March 30-April 1, 2012, in Lexington at the Downtown Hilton Hotel. Representing Limestone Chapter were Regent Anne Worthington, 5th District Director, Dena Green, and Charlotte Allison.

Activities during the conference included State Board reports, special awards presentations, genealogy workshops, memorial service, youth awards, historical fashion show, and banquet speakers. Friday evening's guest speaker was author Randell Jones who has done extensive research on Daniel Boone and published several books on Boone's travels and life. The Saturday banquet recognized the work that DAR members do to support Bacone College in Oklahoma; the speaker was Melissa Fouch, Director of Development at the college which was one of the first institutions of higher education established for American Indians. Kentucky State C.A.R. President Haley Rigg brought greetings to the delegation during the Saturday banquet also.

Limestone Chapter received recognition for State Honor Roll, Tri-Color Award for perfect score; Outstanding Program for Women's Issues among Fifth District Chapters, second place; Certificate for Outstanding Support of the C.A.R.; Certificates for Participation in a Joint DAR-SAR Meeting and Participation in Grave-marking with SAR as well as Dena Green was presented the Martha Washington Medal by the Kentucky Sons of the American Revolution for her work in preparing new member applications for the SAR.

During the Youth Awards, Limestone Chapter had several youth to be recognized with state awards in the Junior American Citizens contests. In attendance were Haley Rigg, 11th grade, and Andrew Jefferson, 10th grade, who received first place in the state for their individual community service projects. Ashley Wentworth, 11th grade, received first place for her poster. Four students from the classes of Mrs. Renee Biddle and Mrs. Kim Setty at Straub Elementary represented their first grade classes by accepting first place for their group community service project; these students were Austin Moreland, Paige Decker, Anna McMillin, and Hunter Satchwell. Jansen Biddle, third grade, received first place for his poem. Other state winners who were not able to attend were Randy Humphries, 12th grade, for his photo essay and Ms. Elaina's Pre-K class at Highland Christian School for their winning banner. Each of these state winners also placed first at the East-Central Division level.

For more information about the activities and membership in DAR, contact Dena Green at 882-2011.

ADVICE

Offense was in the eye of body art's beholder

DEAR ABBY: On a recent airline flight, a tall man who sat behind me had his left leg out in the aisle during most of the trip. He was wearing shorts, and you could see his large tattoo of a naked woman on his thigh. The drawing was very explicit, and there was no way to avoid seeing it because passengers had to cross over his leg to reach the bathroom.

How do you explain this kind of "art" to children? Would the airline have the right to ask him to cover the tattoo if it was objectionable? — OFFENDED TRAVELER FROM NEW YORK

DEAR OFFENDED: Because body art could be classified as freedom of expression, I'm not sure they do. However, someone's leg protruding into the aisle might be considered a safety issue because it could cause a trip and fall. It would also impede food and beverage carts traveling up and down the aisle. Because you were offended, I hope you averted your gaze if you needed to make more than one trip to the lavatory, and if there were children in tow, that you didn't call their attention to the "picture."

DEAR ABBY: I had an urgent piece of mail to get to the post office. My sister called the postmistress, who agreed to stay open for her to deliver it. In the meantime, I found two other pieces of mail that required checks, quickly wrote them out and gave the three envelopes to my sister, who rushed them to the post office.

Upon her return, she showed me her vehicle, which had a deep gash running along one side because she had backed down the driveway too quickly, not paying attention, and had scraped the car against the stone post. She thinks I should pay half the cost of repair because "I was involved."

I think it was her carelessness, and therefore, I should not have to pay. I'm not angry, just confused by her reasoning because the same thing happened to me when I ran an errand for her, but I paid on my own for my carelessness. What do you think? —

THINKS DIFFERENTLY IN TENNESSEE
DEAR THINKS DIFFERENTLY: I think you should remind your sister that when the same thing happened to you while running an errand for her, you assumed the responsibility for paying for it. For her to say that you were "involved" is stretching the truth. She's trying to guilt you into paying. Stand your ground.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 20-year-old female junior in college. I am intelligent, attractive and friendly, and I want to remain a virgin until I'm married. This is not because of religious reasons. I have had a few relationships I thought were serious, but I ended up getting dumped for a "looser" girl each time, which really hurts.

My family and friends don't understand that waiting until marriage is part of who I am. Ironically, I was raised to think this was proper, but once I reached a certain age, everyone seemed to change their minds.

I'm not looking to get married for at least five years, which means a long wait for anyone who wants to date me. Am I going to be alone forever just because I won't jump into bed with a guy before we're married? — PRINCIPLED IN ANN ARBOR, MICH.

DEAR PRINCIPLED: Not quite forever. I admire you for adhering to your values and so will the man who marries you.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, May 2, the 123rd day of 2012. There are 243 days left in the year.

HISTORY HIGHLIGHT:

On May 2, 2011, Osama bin Laden, the face of global terrorism and architect of the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks, was killed in a firefight with elite American forces at his Pakistan compound, then quickly buried at sea in a stunning finale to a furtive decade on the run.

ON THIS DATE:

In 1952, the era of commercial jet passenger service began as a BOAC de Havilland Comet carrying 36 passengers took off on a multi-stop flight from London to Johannesburg, South Africa.

In 1957, Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis., died at Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland.

In 1960, Caryl Chessman, who'd become a best-selling author and cause celebre while on death row for kidnapping, rape and robbery, was executed at San Quentin Prison in California.

In 1972, a fire at the Sunshine silver mine in Kellogg, Idaho, claimed the lives of 91 workers who succumbed to carbon monoxide poisoning. Longtime FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover died in Washington at age 77.

In 1982, the Weather Channel made its debut.

Ten years ago: Yasser Arafat emerged from his West Bank headquarters, hours after Israeli troops withdrew from his compound and released the Palestinian leader from months of confinement. The Rev. Paul Shanley, a priest at the epicenter of the clergy sex abuse scandal, turned himself in to authorities in San Diego to face charges in Massachusetts of raping boys during the 1980s. (Shanley was later convicted of repeatedly raping one boy, and was sentenced to 12 to 15 years in prison.)

Five years ago: In a defeat for anti-war Democrats, Congress failed to override President George W. Bush's veto of legislation requiring the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Iraq. In a speech to construction contractors in Washington, President Bush declared al-Qaida "public enemy no. 1 in Iraq."

One year ago: During a somber ceremony in the White House East Room, President

Barack Obama bestowed the Medal of Honor posthumously on two Army privates — Anthony T. Kaho'ohanohano (KAH'-oh-oh-hahn-oh-HAHN'-oh) of Pukalani, Hawaii, and Henry Svehla (SVAY'-lah) of Belleville, N.J. — who had given their lives in the Korean War. Conservative Prime Minister Stephen Harper won a coveted majority government in Canadian elections while the opposition Liberals and Quebec separatists suffered a shattering defeat.

Two Dover natives receive Healy scholarships

Emily and Mary Sticklen of Dover were awarded Gerald F. Healy Kentucky Law Enforcement Memorial Foundation Scholarships. Emily, a student at Northern Kentucky University, and Mary, a student at the University of Kentucky were awarded $2,000 scholarships. They are the surviving daughters of Alexandria Police Department Officer James Sticklen, who died in the line of duty on March 4, 2011.

Sticklen will be honored at the Kentucky Law Enforcement Memorial Ceremony on May 22 at the Department of Criminal Justice Training.

Founded in 1999, The Kentucky Law Enforcement Memorial Foundation's original purpose was to build a memorial that would honor all Kentucky officers who have been killed in the line of duty. Once the monument was completed in 2000, the organization expanded its efforts to include a financial endowment program, which helps Kentucky peace officers and their families with educational, medical and emergency relief.

In 2004, the foundation created this scholarship program to help law enforcement officers, public safety dispatchers and their families pay for college. It is restricted to law enforcement officers and public safety dispatch personnel (current, retired or disabled) and their survivors or dependents. The scholarships may be used at any accredited college or university, including two-year and community colleges and may also be used for attendance at recognized or certified vocational or trade schools. Students do not have to major in law enforcement or criminal justice to be eligible for the scholarship.

"The goal of the Kentucky Law Enforcement Memorial Foundation has always been to honor and help the officers of this state," said KLEMF Executive Director Horace Johnson. "I cannot think of a better way to honor the fallen heroes of the past and our officers of today than to help educate their survivors, their comrades and their dependents for a better future."

Gerald F. Healy was a founding member of the KLEMF organization and served on the board of directors until his death in January 2009.

The owner of 14 McDonald's franchises in central Kentucky, Healy embraced the philosophy of giving back to the community and was instrumental in starting the KLEMF college scholarship program.

Minerva High School reunion committee meets

A luncheon hosted by Juanita Bickers, Martha Moford and Thelma Beckett was held on April 4, 2012 for the Minerva High School Reunion planning committee. The luncheon was held at the home of Thelma Beckett.

After a delicious lunch, the committee exchanged ideas and made plans in regard to proceeding with reunion activities. Thirteen committee members were present. There is lots of interest and enthusiasm being shown among the committee members and it is being hoped that all alumni will be making plans to attend the Minerva School Reunion on May 26, 2012.

On Monday, April 9, 2012, the officers and planning committee met at the Mason County Extension Office to discuss final plans, costs and program. Frankie Schumacher's secretary's report was approved as read. Bill Moran gave the treasurer's report. After approval of the treasurer's report, Mr. Moran reported on the status of invitations and reservations.

Updated addresses were made on the reunion list. The committee approved plans for the decorations, social time, nametags, entertainment and prizes for the reunion event were discussed.

Alumni are being asked to send in the completed return card with their reservation payment to Bill Moran by May 12, 2012. It is important that the choice of entrée is marked. The price is $25 per person which includes dinner, tax and gratuity.

The committee has opened reservations to anyone attending Minerva School. Those wishing to attend may call Joan Walch at 606-564-9353 or Bill Moran at 606-564-9298 with an up-to-date address and phone number and then a letter with details of the reunion will be mailed to them.

The next meeting for the committee and officers will be held on Monday, May 14, 2012, at the Mason County Extension Office at 7 p.m.

MCTC Commencement activities announced

Maysville Community and Technical College graduates will participate in commencement exercises Friday, May 4, on the lawn in front of the administration wing of the Maysville campus at 6:30 p.m. For academic year 2011-12, MCTC will award over 560 diplomas and degrees to 429 graduates.

MCTC President Ed Story will preside over the evening's program. Kelly Grenier from the Licking Valley Campus in Cynthiaana will be the featured student speaker. Board of Directors' Chair Charles Calvert will also provide a welcome to the graduates and their guests. Awards for Distinguished Alumni and Distinguished Service to Education will be presented during commencement.

A reception to honor the graduates will immediately follow commencement in the Van Meter Student Center on the first floor of the Calvert Wing and the lobby of the Technical Wing. All family, friends, faculty, and staff are invited to attend.

A graduation awards celebration is held on each of the MCTC campuses. Students on the Rowan campus celebrated Friday, April 27; Thursday, May 3, the celebration will get underway at 5:30 p.m. at The Prizing House in Cynthiaana for the students of the Licking Valley campus; Friday, May 4, festivities will begin on the Maysville campus. The picnic is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. in the Van Meter Student Center, 1st floor, Calvert wing. The graduation awards celebration for the students of the Maysville campus will immediately follow the picnic.

In case of inclement weather a decision will be made regarding the commencement site by noon on Wednesday, May 2, and the announcement will be posted on the MCTC website.

Tony nominations spread out but ‘Once’ leads

NOMINATIONS INCLUDE OVER 30 SHOWS BUT LOW-TECH ‘ONCE’ LEADS WITH 11 NODS

MARK KENNEDY
Associated Press

NEW YORK | There was something for virtually everyone to smile about on Broadway on Tuesday after 30 of 37 shows this season got at least one Tony Award nomination. The folks at “Once” had the most reason to celebrate later at their working bar on stage.

The musical based on the low-budget 2006 film about an unlikely romance between a Czech flower seller and an Irish street musician in Dublin earned a leading 11 nominations, including nods for best musical, for both its lead actors, its book, lighting, sound, choreography and set, which offers the audience real drinks before the show in a replica pub.

Its director, John Tiffany, was watching a play in Glasgow, Scotland, when his phone began buzzing “like crazy” with word of the show’s success. He sat through the play but learned about the Tony haul after glancing at texts.

“‘Once’ constantly surprises me. I think it’s the power of the music and the storytelling that people connect with,” said John Tiffany, who also was nominated for best director of a musical.

Two other musicals — “The Gershwins’ Porgy and Bess” and “Nice Work If You Can Get It” — each got 10 nominations. Unlike last year’s “The Book of Mormon,” no monster single hit dominated the nominations.

Disney had a good day. “Peter and the Starcatcher,” a play about the origins of Peter Pan co-produced by Disney Theatrical Productions earned nine nominations, while its “Newsies” got eight nods. The fall revival of Stephen Sondheim’s “Follies” got eight nominations, setting up a face-off in the best revival category with “The Gershwins’ Porgy and Bess,” which Sondheim had criticized.

Later this summer, “Once,” “Nice Work If You Can Get It,” and “Newsies” will compete for the title of best new musical with a surprise entry — “Leap of Faith,” which was ravaged by critics. “Ghost the Musical,” an import from London with songs by Dave Stewart and Glen Ballard, failed to get nominated in the best musical category.

The Tony Awards will be broadcast on CBS from the Beacon Theatre on June 10. Neil Patrick Harris, the star of “How I Met Your Mother,” will be the host.

Broadway’s most expensive show, the $75 million “Spider-Man: Turn Off the Dark,” got only two nominations, for best scenic design and costume. The former punch-line is now a top-earning hit and a spokesman shrugged off the snub.

“Even without a nomination for best musical, we can assure you that the audiences this week will love the show just as much as they did last week,” Rick Miramontez said.

The best new play category includes “Clybourne Park” by Bruce Norris, “Other Desert Cities” by Jon Robin Baitz, “Peter and the Starcatcher” by Rick Elice, and David Ives’ “Venus in Fur.” Plays that didn’t make the cut included Katori Hall’s “The Mountaintop,” Nicky Silver’s “The Lyons,” David Auburn’s “The Columnist” and Theresa Rebeck’s “Seminar.” With no nominations for “Seminar,” producers said they would end performances after Sunday.

In the musical revival category, “Follies” and “The Gershwins’ Porgy and Bess” will compete against two Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice works: “Jesus Christ Superstar” and “Evita.”

“Once,” with songs by Marketa Irglova and Glen Hansard, was originally a low-budget movie made for about $50,000. The film earned $20 million, thanks in part to an original score that included the sublime, 2007 Oscar-winning song, “Falling Slowly.” The musical is a study in how to beautifully adapt a movie to the stage.

“Once” earned its stars, Steve Kazee and Cristin Milioti, best actor nominations. It also earned nods for best scenic design, best book of a musical and Elizabeth A. Davis got a nomination for an actress in a featured role.

The best leading actor in a play Tony will pit James Corden from the British import “One Man, Two Guvnors,” Philip Seymour Hoffman from Arthur Miller’s “Death of a Salesman,” James Earl Jones from “Gore Vidal’s The Best Man,” Frank Langella from “Man and Boy” and John Lithgow of “The Columnist.”

“I expect to go out with the gang tonight, which I don’t do very often because this play is so damned exhausting,” Lithgow said, laughing. “And I intend to buy all the drinks. That’s pretty unusual, too. I am a Scotsman, after all.”

Joe DiPietro earned a Tony nomination for writing the book to “Nice Work If You Can Get It,” which stars Matthew Broderick and Kelli O’Hara, who also got a nomination as a leading actress in a musical. The frothy musical smartly integrates classic Gershwin songs such as “Sweet and Lowdown,” “Let’s Call the Whole Thing Off,” “S’Wonderful,” “Someone to Watch Over Me,” “They All Laughed” and “Fascinating Rhythm.”

The musical is the first since DiPietro won two Tonys for writing the still-running “Memphis,” but he’s not jaded.

“The Tonys are always a big deal,” he said. “I wrote for a long time and no one seemed to care and then I suddenly started getting produced. When I won my Tonys, it was childhood dream time coming true.”

“Other Desert Cities,” a play by Baitz that moved to Broadway after critical acclaim at Lincoln Center Theater, earned five nominations, including best play.

“My psychology is such that I can’t jump up and down. I suppose that makes me Jewish and of the theater,” Baitz joked after the announcement.

Baitz’s play, about a dysfunctional, politically divided family wrestling with a deep secret in their past, also earned Stockard Channing and Judith Light acting nominations.

“It feels extraordinary. I feel thrilled, I feel blessed, I feel honored,” said Light, the former “Who’s the Boss?” star who last year was nominated for her performance in “Lombardi.” “I was away from the theater for a long time. When I came back, I came back slowly and I had to really work my way back in and not expect anything.”

Light will compete in the featured role category against Linda Emond, who won raves for her role in “Arthur Miller’s Death of a Salesman.” Emond, who managed to keep her yoga class appointment despite the fuss, was gracious, pleased that her show produced nominations for co-stars Andrew Garfield and Hoffman, as well as director Mike Nichols.

“I am only more aware on a day like this that this is not something I do alone. This is not something that feels like I, in particular, am being noted for,” she said. “I go out on that stage and there are many people backstage and during the show who help me through the play.”

The battle in the female leading actress play category will be fierce, with competitors including Nina Arianda of “Venus in Fur,” Tracie Bennett of “End of the Rainbow,” Linda Lavin of “The Lyons,” Cynthia Nixon in “Wit” and Channing.

Lavin, the Golden Globe- and Tony Award-winning actress who starred in the long-running TV sitcom “Alice,” was literally in the air when she learned of her nomination. She was flying back from her home in Wilmington, N.C., after seeing a play at her 50-seat Red Barn Studio Theatre.

“I don’t think I’ve hit the ground yet,” she said. “I’m sitting in my apartment, having a bowl of soup. It’s been quite a whirlwind morning. I just hope I don’t die from it. I’m feeling very, very heightened right now.”

In “The Lyons,” Lavin plays mother of a family grappling with the impending death of its patriarch. The actress said she wished the playwright had been nominated for writing about a woman who is “funny and furious and deeply sad — all at the same moment. I’ve always liked to play those notes all at once.”

AP Entertainment Writer Jake Coyle and AP National Writer Jocelyn Noveck contributed to this report.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER

BRIDGE by Steve Becker

North dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH		EAST
♠ A J 7 2		♠ 6 4
♥ 8 6		♥ 9 7 5 2
♦ A J 9 2		♦ Q 7
♣ K 3 2		♣ Q J 8 6 4
SOUTH
♠ K Q 10 8 5 3
♥ K J 10
♦ K 10 3
♣ A

The bidding:
North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	6 ♣

Opening lead — ten of clubs.

Looking at the North-South hands, you can see that six spades is unbeatable regardless of how the opposing cards are divided, provided that — and this is a big proviso — declarer knows which opponent has the queen of diamonds. In that case, declarer can collect six spade tricks, two clubs and four diamonds (by means of a finesse or a drop) to make the slam.

But in real life, the location of the crucial queen is not known to declarer. If he stakes everything on a diamond finesse and misguesses which opponent has the queen, he goes down, since at least one heart trick must be lost.

An alternative line of play is for declarer to avoid the diamond guess altogether by discarding his third diamond on the king of clubs. But as he gets rid of one headache, he acquires another, since he might then lose two heart tricks.

There is, however, a reasonable chance of avoiding two heart losers if the latter approach is adopted. If East has the A-Q, only one heart can be lost. If the heart honors are split, declarer will have to guess whether to play the jack or king when he leads a heart toward his hand. This is essentially a 50-50 proposition. Of course, if West has both honors, declarer has no chance on this line of play.

There is no sure way to guarantee 12 tricks, but the best chance, percentage-wise, is to draw trumps and cash the K-A of diamonds, hoping to drop the queen, roughly a 1-in-5 proposition. This works in the actual deal, and the slam is home.

If the queen does not appear when the K-A are played, declarer can discard his remaining diamond on the king of clubs and then tackle the hearts. In this way, South gives himself two chances to make the slam instead of just one.

Tomorrow: The one that got away.

HOROSCOPE by Frances Drake

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)

This is a great day at work, because not only do you feel good, others are ready to help you! I say make the most of this and get a lot done.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)

What a wonderful play day! You feel prankish, flirtatious and ready for fun. Enjoy vacations, parties, sports, playful times with children and social getaways.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)

Family relationships blossom today. This is a good day for you today. After all, when you're happy, you attract the right people as well as the right situations — have you noticed? Life seems to work this way.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)

Your positive frame of mind guarantees a good day for you today. After all, when you're happy, you attract the right people as well as the right situations — have you noticed? Life seems to work this way.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22)

This is an excellent day for business and commerce; however, it's best to postpone important decisions until tomorrow. Just wait. Whatever you set into action today will not tend to achieve its objective.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)

This is an easygoing, fun-filled day, which no doubt will have a few goofy aspects. Expect shortages and delays — but no one will mind. It's all minor stuff.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)

You feel private today. If you can find an opportunity to enjoy solitude in beautiful surroundings, this will please you. Keep an eye out for the chance to make this luxury a reality.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)

All group activities are blessed today. Enjoy meetings with others, whether they are business or casual. Why not run something up the flagpole to see if anyone salutes?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)

Relations with authority figures will be extremely positive today. In fact, people in power will help you, through encouragement, praise or even money. Yes!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19)

Travel plans look exciting today. Similarly, plans related to higher education, the media, publishing, medicine and the law look equally optimistic.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)

Because people are in a cooperative frame of mind today, you might want to make decisions about shared property. However, it is wise to postpone these decisions until tomorrow.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20)

Enjoy discussions with partners and close friends today; however, keep it light. Avoid important decisions. (It's a goofy day.)

YOU BORN TODAY

You're unusually focused and organized. This is why you need private time just for you, even if it's to enjoy your hobbies. (It's because you're always thinking.) Because you're a people watcher, you're also a great observer of the human condition. (And what you learn invariably helps you.) In this year ahead, an important decision will rise. Choose wisely.

For Solid Waste Management Plan Update 2013-2017

The Mason County Fiscal Court proposes to adopt the county's Solid Waste Management Plan update per 401 KAR 49:011, Section 5. The Plan, if approved, will serve as the basis for handling solid waste management issues in Mason County, including the Cities of Dover, Sardis, Germantown, and Maysville Kentucky, for the year's 2013-2017. The proposed plan is available for public inspection beginning May 1st, 2012 at the following locations during their normal business hours:

Mason County Judge/Executive's office,
221 Stanley Reed Court Street, Maysville

Additional information about this plan is available from Steve Frodge, Mason County Solid Waste Coordinator, at 606-759-5459. Anyone unable to review the plan at the above location may call and request that a copy be mailed to them.

Any person wishing to comment on the plan may do so by providing comments no later than the close of business on May 31st, 2012 to the Mason County Fiscal Court at 221 Stanley Reed Court Street. Any person wishing to be heard at a public hearing must make a request via telephone, fax, email, or written communication, to the governing body identified above, no later than the close of business on June 1 st, 2012.

A public hearing is scheduled on June 8th, 2012 to receive public comments on the plan. The meeting will be held at the Mason County Courthouse at 9:00 a.m.. However if no request for a public hearing has been received by June 7th, 2012, the hearing may not be held.

The Governing Body will respond to written public comments within 15 days of the close of the public comment period, and will consider the plan for passage at the June fiscal court meeting. The plan, if approved, will then be submitted to the Kentucky Energy and Environmental Cabinet for review and approval.

PUBLIC NOTICE RE:

MAYSVILLE-MASON COUNTY LANDFILL RATES

The Maysville-Mason County Landfill has strived to provide efficient, environmentally friendly and a cost effective means of waste disposal for our customers. These have been and always will be our top priorities. However due to increases in our operating costs, we must increase our disposal fees. The current cost of disposal of $20.00 per ton with the addition of the Kentucky Environmental Remediation Fee of $1.75 per ton, which has been in place since 1997, will be increased to $22.00 per ton disposal and $1.75 for the Kentucky Environmental Remediation Fee. The new overall cost per disposal at the Maysville-Mason County Landfill will be $23.75 per ton. Customers from Adams and Clermont County, Ohio will also be subject to the Adams/Clermont County Solid Waste Designated Landfill Fee, which is currently $2.00 per ton in addition to the new rate of $23.75.

The new disposal fee will begin July 1, 2012. The Maysville-Mason County Landfill appreciates your business. If you have any questions, please contact Todd Leonard, Landfill Manager, at the Maysville-Mason County Landfill Office (606) 759-7049.

DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY

FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY

Proposed Flood Hazard Determinations for Mason County, Kentucky and Incorporated Areas

The Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency has issued a preliminary Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM), and where applicable, Flood Insurance Study (FIS) report, reflecting proposed flood hazard determinations within Mason County, Kentucky and Incorporated Areas. These flood hazard determinations may include the addition or modification of Base Flood Elevations, base flood depths, Special Flood Hazard Area boundaries or zone designations, or the regulatory floodway. Technical information or comments are solicited on the proposed flood hazard determinations shown on the preliminary FIRM and/or FIS report for Mason County, Kentucky and Incorporated Areas. These flood hazard determinations are the basis for the floodplain management measures that your community is required to either adopt or show evidence of being already in effect in order to qualify or remain qualified for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program. However, before these determinations are effective for floodplain management purposes, you will be provided an opportunity to appeal the proposed information. For information on the statutory 90-day period provided for appeals, as well as a complete listing of the communities affected and the locations where copies of the FIRM are available for review, please visit FEMA's website at www.fema.gov/plan/prevent/thm/bfe, or call the FEMA Map Information eXchange (FMIX) toll free at 1-877-FEMA MAP (1-877-336-2627).

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Sealed Bids will be received, opened, and immediately read aloud at 2:00 p.m. on Tuesday, May 8, 2012 for the addition to the Mason County Animal Shelter. The bids will be received at the Mason County Fiscal Court located at 221 Stanley Reed Court, Maysville, Kentucky 41056. The project is located on River Road, Maysville, Kentucky 41056. The bid is to furnish all necessary labor, materials, tools, machinery, warranties, and any other items required to construct the wood framed addition with cement board siding for the existing Animal Shelter as indicated in the contract documents.

No bid may be withdrawn for a period of 60 days after the opening. Each bid must include a bid security in the amount of 10% of the total bid in the form of a certified check, cashier's check, irrevocable letter of credit, or surety company bond and made payable to the Mason County Fiscal Court.

If a bid security in the amount of 10% of the full bid amount is submitted with the bid, the successful bidder may be required to furnish a performance bond and labor and material bond from an acceptable surety in the amount of 100% of the full contract. If a bid guaranty bond in the amount of 100% of the total bid is submitted with the bid, no additional performance and labor and material bond will be required.

The contract documents have been prepared by DS2 Architects (107 W. 2nd Street, Maysville, KY 41056). They can be obtained by contacting the office of DS2 Architects at 606-564-0961 or at www.ds2architects.com for a nonrefundable payment of Forty Dollars ($40.00) per set plus Ten Dollars ($10.00) per set for shipping. Contractors must purchase contract documents from DS2 Architects in order to be placed on the plan holder's list, which is a requirement in order to be eligible to submit a bid.

All provisions of the Kentucky Revised Statutes as it relates to bid guaranty's conditions, liabilities, and withdrawal of a bid are applicable to this contract. The owner reserves the right to waive any informality or to accept any bid which is deemed most favorable. The owner also reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

By order of the owner, Mason County Fiscal Court.

James L. Gallenstein
Mason County Judge/Executive
